Figure 1. A schematic diagram of the experimental design. The participants were divided into two groups: the control group and the intervention group. The control group received a standard curriculum, while the intervention group received a curriculum that included a module on the effects of alcohol on the brain. The intervention group was further divided into two subgroups: the high-risk subgroup and the low-risk subgroup. The high-risk subgroup was defined as those participants who had a family history of alcoholism, and the low-risk subgroup was defined as those participants who did not have a family history of alcoholism. The intervention group was then divided into two subgroups: the high-risk subgroup and the low-risk subgroup.
