

The Sleep Cycle

When we sleep, we follow a regular pattern known as the sleep cycle. The sleep cycle consists of four stages. It can take around 90 minutes to 100 minutes to complete. The cycle repeats itself many times throughout the night.

The first stage is when a person is falling asleep. During this time, the eyes are usually open, but much slower than when we are awake. The heart rate is also slower, and breathing is also slower. By the end of this stage, we are fully asleep from this stage. During this stage, we dream. We dream in short bursts, and we get the feeling of falling.

During this time, our bodies prepare themselves for sleep. Our eyes are closed, and body temperature goes down. The heart rate and breathing rate also decrease. Our body is completely relaxed. The second stage of the sleep cycle is the most time to process information, as this is when thoughts begin to form. This stage is the longest part of our sleep. It makes up over 50% of our total sleep time.

The Sleep Cycle

The graph illustrates the sleep cycle with four distinct stages:

- Stage 1: Falling asleep. The graph shows a sharp dip in heart rate and breathing rate.
- Stage 2: Deep sleep. The graph shows a period of relative stability with low heart rate and breathing rate.
- Stage 3: Light sleep. The graph shows a slight increase in heart rate and breathing rate.
- Stage 4: Waking up. The graph shows a sharp rise in heart rate and breathing rate.

Below the graph, there is a section for drawing and writing:
