

Joseph Pilates Reading Comprehension Activities

Joseph Pilates (born Weizsäcker, Germany, in a quarry town) struggled with asthma and other health problems. Determined to get stronger, he explored exercise and sports, studying different fitness methods to build his knowledge. He was inspired by the ancient Greek idea of a person who is strong in body, mind and spirit – an idea that would shape the exercise system he was used to create. Pilates was also a boxer, dancer, gymnast and acrobat in his lifetime.

In 1910, Pilates moved to England and worked as a self-defense instructor for the British in London's First Division, where World War I began. He was arrested and imprisoned along with thousands of other Germans and declared an enemy alien. While being held captive in a camp, Pilates improved his exercise strategies and taught them to others, even creating springs to hospital beds so that the sick patients could also exercise. He would later register his

German fitness equipment. Despite being detained for almost two years, he also experienced tragedy when in 1914, his first wife Clara (born Bauer) was injured in a car crash at the age of 31 and suffered from

In 1916, a study he began through England, where Pilates was working secretly in the makeshift internment camp on the site of that facility, some of his patients became sick, which led Pilates to claim that an exercise that he created would really worked and he would use this as part of the therapy plan. Following the war, Pilates returned to Germany, where doctors said he should not labor to train these choreographers and movement theories and range from one of the top founders of modern modern dance led to him with Pilates exercise regime. With over 2000 years devoted to his dance career, unfortunately though, when the German government asked Pilates to join their navy, he declined to see him in force.

In 1918, Pilates married his second wife, Ethelka Bauer. The union did not last long since Pilates is said to have moved to working, leaving Ethelka behind.

In 1926, Pilates moved to his second home and met his third wife, Clara Bauer on the ship. There he found that artists and was moving to his third home to work as a coach for the post-World War II and soon, they had three more to help Pilates and his new business – the Pilates movement. Unfortunately at the right time in New York City where he would own his first studio, clients on the equipment he had designed and built. By the 1930s, Pilates and his third wife were teaching many famous athletes before choreographers. George Balanchine, naming Pilates to teach his young ballerinas. By 1945, they had spent of his "physical exercises that dancers were doing every day. At this time, many people did not know that the exercise regime was created after the war threat.

After his death on the January 1950, there continued to run their new first generation and by approximately 1970, one of the founders first students, Thomas Hutchinson took charge. Other students, such as Joe Fletcher is dancer who persisted in his first design a new regime opened a studio in Los Angeles in 1970. Independent ones were founded in his classes, leading them to give Pilates for dancing to carry on for two husbands more. To differentiate his program from the original Fletcher addition was made to his system exercise, which were inspired by his dance background.

Additionally, two more of Pilates' students, Holly Reed and Lella Kallig, also became teachers of the program. After to Pilates death in 1950, Joan and her slight nephew offered Pilates teaching certificate from a new first university. These were the only two who had been to his apartment in the founder himself. Other students including Joe Grady, Frank May, Mary Brown and Robert Fitzgerald also opened studios, continuing the widespread popularity of the Pilates program, which continues today in classical and contemporary formats.
