Meat A Benign Extravagance:

Meat Simon Fairlie, 2010 Meat A Benign Extravagance is a groundbreaking exploration of the difficult environmental ethical and health issues surrounding the human consumption of animals Garnering huge praise in the UK this is a book that answers the question should we be farming animals or not Not a simple answer but one that takes all views on meat eating into account It lays out in detail the reasons why we must indeed decrease the amount of meat we eat both for the planet and for ourselves and yet explores how different forms of agriculture including livestock shape our landscape and culture At the heart of this book Simon Fairlie argues that society needs to re orient itself back to the land both physically and spiritually and explains why an agriculture that can most readily achieve this is one that includes a measure of livestock farming It is a well researched look at agricultural and environmental theory from a fabulous writer and a farmer and is sure to take off where other books on vegetarianism and veganism have fallen short in their global scope Meat Simon Fairlie, 2011

We Must Begin with the Land Stephen Hunt, 2025-04-29 We live at a time of intractable armed conflicts starved of resolution We inhabit a planet where damaged ecosystems are hungry for restoration We endure chronic inequalities of wealth and power which crave redistribution During the past decade such intertwined factors have precipitated a food crisis in which increasingly millions experience malnutrition As elsewhere the UK is constrained by legacies of structural injustice and failing neoliberal policies Yet We Must Begin with the Land is not another account of global doom It explores an abundance of innovative and traditional alternatives for producing food renewable energies and organic materials through agroecology Using the anti colonial lens of social ecology Stephen E Hunt considers mini real world case studies for diversifying and democratising how we might grow share and eat Gleaning such examples takes us from La Via Campesina the world's largest food sovereignty network to efforts to preserve Indigenous knowledges from radical material sciences using hemp seaweed and fungi to the defiant trees and fruits of revolutionary Rojava from proliferating Kleingarten to micro projects at home such as an inner city growing community where refugees sprout hope and Japanese Shumai cultivation unexpectedly thriving in a Wiltshire hamlet Social ecology is a powerful set of conceptual principles for transforming our relationship to food It offers a critique of existing supply chains that all too often shackle producers and consumers alike in dependency and poverty But it also sparks different conversations about how we might delink from and reconnect into food chains that are more intricate and ultimately more resilient It signals priorities not just to meet social needs and for ecological survival but also for human liberation and pleasure and flourishing sustainability Panic on a Plate Rob Lyons, 2011-10-07 Food in Britain today is more plentiful more nutritious more varied and much more affordable than ever in our history This is something to celebrate and Rob Lyons does exactly that In a series of short upbeat chapters he challenges head on the fashionable critics of so called junk food and the wacky world of organic and locally sourced food campaigners They have created needless panic and made our cheap and tasty food an object of shame and blame when it should be a cause for rejoicing Panic on a Plate draws on history science and official reports to show the fearmongers are wrong the changing face of food is full of hope Critical Animal and Media Studies Núria Almiron,Matthew Cole,Carrie P.

Freeman,2015-10-14 This book aims to put the speciesism debate and the treatment of non human animals on the agenda of critical media studies and to put media studies on the agenda of animal ethics researchers Contributors examine the convergence of media and animal ethics from theoretical philosophical discursive social constructionist and political economic perspectives The book is divided into three sections foundations representation and responsibility outlining the different disciplinary approaches application to media studies and covering how non human animals and the relationship between humans and non humans are represented by the mass media concluding with suggestions for how the media as a major producer of cultural norms and values related to non human animals and how we treat them might improve such representations Climate change and sustainable development Thomas Potthast,Simon Meisch,2012-08-13

Climate change is a major framing condition for sustainable development of agriculture and food Global food production is a major contributor to global greenhouse gas emissions and at the same time it is among the sectors worst affected by climate change This book brings together a multidisciplinary group of authors exploring the ethical dimensions of climate change and food Conceptual clarifications provide a necessary basis for putting sustainable development into practice Adaptation and mitigation demand altering both agricultural and consumption practices Intensive vs extensive production is reassessed with regard to animal welfare efficiency and environmental implications Property rights pay an ever increasing role as do shifting land use practices agro energy biotechnology food policy to green consumerism And last but not least tools are suggested for teaching agricultural and food ethics Notwithstanding the plurality of ethical analyses and their outcome it becomes apparent that governance of agri food is faced by new needs and new approaches of bringing in the value dimension much more explicitly This book is intended to serve as a stimulating collection that will contribute to debate and reflection on the sustainable future of agriculture and food production in the face of global change Livestock Erin McKenna,2018-03-15

Most livestock in America currently live in cramped and unhealthy confinement have few stable social relationships with humans or others of their species and finish their lives by being transported and killed under stressful conditions In Livestock Erin McKenna allows us to see this situation and presents alternatives She interweaves stories from visits to farms interviews with producers and activists and other rich material about the current condition of livestock In addition she mixes her account with pragmatist and ecofeminist theorizing about animals drawing in particular on John Dewey s account of evolutionary history and provides substantial historical background about individual species and about human animal relations This deeply informative text reveals that the animals we commonly see as livestock have rich evolutionary histories species specific behaviors breed tendencies and individual variation just as those we respect in companion animals such as dogs cats and horses To restore a similar level of respect for livestock McKenna examines ways we can balance the needs of our livestock animals with the environmental and social impacts of raising them and she investigates new possibilities for human ways of being in relationships with animals This book thus offers us a picture of healthier more respectful relationships with livestock The In Vitro Meat Cook Book Koert van Mensvoort,Hendrik-Jan Grievink,2014-11-04 Includes the In Vitro hamburger and 45 other recipes Beautifully designed book that will make the world think about future food

Going to Seed Simon Fairlie,2022-02-22 Simon Fairlie is possibly the most influential and unusual eco activist you might not have heard of The Observer An unforgettable firsthand account of how the hippie movement flowered in the late 1960s appeared spent by the Thatcher consumed 1980s yet became the seedbed for progressive reform we now take for granted and continues to inspire generations of rebels and visionaries Fairlie has a refreshingly declarative style he s analytical funny and self aware His memoir has much to offer anyone interested in movement history or in the future of intentional communities Elizabeth Royte Food Environment Reporting Network At a young age Simon Fairlie rejected the rat race and embarked on a new trip to find his own path He dropped out of Cambridge University to hitchhike to Istanbul and bicycle through India He established a commune in France was arrested multiple times for squatting and civil disobedience and became a leading figure in protests against the British government s road building programs of the 1980s and later in legislative battles to help people secure access to land for low impact sustainable living Over the course of fifty years we witness a man s drive for self sufficiency freedom authenticity and a deep connection to the land Fairlie grew up in a middle class household in leafy middle England His path had been laid out for him by his father boarding school Oxbridge and a career in journalism But everything changed when Simon's life ran headfirst into London's counterculture in the 1960s Finding Beat poetry blues music cannabis and anti Vietnam War protests unlocked a powerful lust to be free Instead of becoming a celebrated Fleet Street journalist like his father Simon became a laborer a stonemason a farmer a scythesman and then a magazine editor and a writer of a very different sort In Going to Seed he shares the highs of his experience alongside the painful costs of his ongoing search for freedom estrangement from his family financial insecurity and the loss of friends and lovers to the excesses and turbulence that continued through the 70s and 80s Part moving free wheeling memoir part social critique Going to Seed questions the current trajectory of Western progress and the explosive consumerism growing inequality and environmental devastation laid bare in our daily newsfeeds and will resonate with anyone who wonders what the world might look like if we began to chart a radically different course This is a fascinating funny and moving record of an extraordinary life lived in extraordinary times George Monbiot Friends' Intelligencer ,1871 All
