study looks into a research program that does all that and more. It was developed in the late 1980s and presented in the early 1990s as a polysystem PS study of adaptations. Since then the PS label has been replaced with descriptive. This book studies the question of whether and how a PS approach could evolve into a descriptive adaptation studies DAS approach. Although not perfect, no method is. DAS offers a number of assets. Apart from dealing with the above mentioned issues, DAS transcends an Auteurist approach and looks at explanation beyond the level of individual agency even if contextualized. As an alternative to the endless accumulation of ad hoc case studies, it suggests corpus based research into wider trends of adaptational behavior and the roles and functions of sets of adaptations. DAS also allows reflection upon its own epistemic values. It sheds new light on some old issues. How can one define adaptation? What does it mean to study adaptation as adaptation? Is equivalence still possible and is the concept still relevant? DAS also tackles some deeper epistemological issues. How can phenomena be compared? Why would difference be more real than sameness or change more real than stasis? How does description relate to evaluation, explanation and prediction etc? This book addresses both theory minded scholars who are interested in epistemological reflection and practice oriented adaptation students who want to get started. From a theoretical point of view, it discusses arguments that could support the legitimacy of adaptation studies as an academic discipline. From a practical point of view, it explains in general terms ways of conducting an adaptation study. Patrick Cattrysse's work is of utmost importance to Adaptation Studies. As the first extended attempt to develop a rigorous methodology which borrows in very meaningful ways from Adaptation Studies' cousin Translation Studies, this book should be on every Adaptation scholar's shelf. While Hutcheon's, Sanders and Leitch to name but a few, laid the groundwork which allowed Adaptation Studies to establish itself as a field of inquiry in its own right, Cattrysse moves the field into the next necessary stage that of developing conceptual tools which stand the test of critical investigation and allow Adaptation Studies to move beyond the single case study approach. Katja Krebs, University of Bristol. This book is a bold initiative; it proposes and illustrates a comprehensive new empirical research programme for film adaptation studies inspired by the way systems theory and norm theory have expanded Translation Studies. One of the book's unusual strengths is the way the proposal is grounded in a thoughtful theoretical discussion of conceptual and methodological issues dealing with such notions as theory, descriptivism, definition, diachrony and explanation. This gives the work a significance that ranges well beyond Adaptation Studies alone; it deserves the attention of scholars in the humanities in general. Andrew Chesterman, University of Helsinki. This dense and theoretically informed study argues forcefully for a descriptive systems analysis approach to literature film adaptation, building on the author's earlier corpus based study of film noir and adaptation. Providing a wide ranging discussion of important critical questions including the place of logical positivism in humanistic studies, this book will give adaptation scholars much to think about. Well written, carefully organized and consistently persuasive, DESCRIPTIVE ADAPTATION STUDIES promises to be an important intervention in a field of increasing importance in humanistic studies. Must reading for scholars in the field. R

Book jacket Converging Media John Vernon Pavlik, Shawn McIntosh, 2004 Converging Media reflects the fundamental changes that digital technologies have made in the way people get their news and entertainment and conduct media commerce The book does not contend that every media product such as newspapers magazines or books are or ever will become digital Rather Converging Media proposes that the majority of the process of mass communication is or is becoming digital

Publisher description Participation and Media Production Nico Carpentier, Benjamin De Cleen, 2008 In an era when especially new media are celebrated for their participatory potential questions about the nature and intensity of these participatory processes seem to be superfluous But raising these questions pushes us into a critical mode towards the changes that have lead to the present day media landscape This volume TM s authors aim to activate this critical mode and reflect on the participatory nature of contemporary media organizations and products In order to stand even a remote chance to realize this objective and to critically unravel the societal role of participation we need to acknowledge that participation is a complex and contested notion covering a wide variety of meanings and practices that are converging into a hybrid of technologies genres and formats At the same time prudence is required as many of the empowering and transformative opportunities cover up a multitude of restrictions that deal with muting voices appropriations techniques of surveillance inequalities and exclusions This volume thus provides its readership with a set of analyses that reconcile the appreciation for the analogue and digital empowerment and emancipation with the critical analysis of their boundaries Participation and Media Production is the result of the intellectual work of the participants of the 2007 San Francisco Conference of the International Communication Association ICA Library & Information Science Abstracts ,2008
