Over It Getting Up And Moving On After Bad Stuff Happens:

After Southern Modernism Matthew Guinn, 2011-06-14 The literature of the contemporary South might best be understood for its discontinuity with the literary past. At odds with traditions of the Southern Renaissance southern literature of today sharply refutes the Nashville Agrarians and shares few of Faulkner's and Welty's concerns about place community and history. This sweeping study of the literary South's new direction focuses on nine well established writers who by breaking away from the firmly ensconced myths have emerged as an iconoclastic generation. Harry Crews Dorothy Allison Bobbie Ann Mason Larry Brown Kaye Gibbons Randall Kenan Richard Ford Cormac McCarthy and Barry Hannah. Resisting the modernist methods of the past they have established their own postmodern ground beyond the shadow of their predecessors. This shift in authorial perspective is a significant indicator of the future of southern writing. Crews's seminal role as a ground breaking poor white author. Mason's and Crews's portrayals of rural life and Allison's and Brown's frank portrayals of the lower class pose a challenge to traditional depictions of the South. The dissenting voices of Gibbons and Kenan who focus on gender race and sexuality create fiction that is at once identifiably southern and also distinctly subversive. Gibbons's iconoclastic stance toward patriarchy like the outsider's critique of community found in Kenan's work proffers a portrait of the South unprecedented in the region's literature. Ford McCarthy and Hannah each approach the South's traditional notions of history and community with new irreverence and treat familiar southern topics in a distinctly postmodern manner. Whether through Ford's generic consumer landscape the haunted netherworld of McCarthy's southern novels or Hannah's riotous burlesque of the Civil War these authors assail the philosophical and cultural foundations from which the Southern Renaissance arose. Challenging the conventional conceptions of the southern canon this is a provocative and innovative contribution to the region's literary study.

Keeping Your Head After Losing Your Job Robert L.

Leahy, 2013-02-07 Although the current economic crisis creates a sense of urgency we have always had and will always have a large number of people who are unemployed. For many it is the most difficult time that they have ever faced. Without help the unemployed face an increased risk of binge drinking depression anxiety and suicide. For many there is a decreased quality of mental health life satisfaction and objective physical wellbeing. Most feel alone and helpless. Dr Robert Leahy has worked with many unemployed people over the years examining the psychological consequences of unemployment and exploring ways to help people cope with the emotional fallout of losing their job. This book gives readers psychological tools to handle their period of unemployment and simple self help strategies that can be used immediately to help them feel better and act better. The book draws on cognitive behavioural therapy CBT as well as practices such as mindfulness to help readers boost their self esteem and confidence decrease anxiety and feelings of helplessness and develop resilience and strength going forward.
