Coaching for Transformation Virginia Kellogg, Martha Lasley, Richard Michaels, Sharon Brown, 2011-08

Coaching for Transformation puts a new spin on coaching. The authors explore not only how the coach empowers clients to support personal growth but also social change. The self-awareness tools awaken passion that helps clients identify their deepest yearning and make a difference in the world. Rather than a mere how-to manual, this book presents a model of coaching from the inside out, examining the relationship of mind, heart, body and spirit in both the coach and the client. The authors present five pathways to transformation, exploring needs and values, experiencing the moment, envisioning the future, expanding the view, embracing the shadow. Each pathway reinvigorates passion and supports commitment to new actions based on self alignment. The book is filled with ways to develop empathic presence and empower people to take action based on self intimacy. Coaching for Transformation presents simple, profound tools for calling out the power of the people we coach. By developing your coach's stand, a courageous, empowered set of physical, mental and spiritual qualities that inspire clients, you create a unique style that includes both compassionate and fierce coaching. The real value of this book lies in the authors' commitment to take coaching out into the world beyond people with power and privilege. As you step into the Coaching for Transformation process, you create sacred relationships with your clients that take them to the core of their being. These relationships are the foundation for their discovery of who they are, what they want and how they contribute to their family, workplace, community and the world. This holistic approach includes 24 coaching skills that help clients identify and stretch toward goals that create a better world. The coaching process results in empowerment and lasting change. The authors are successful coaches who offer a transformative 9-month coaching certification program through their organization, Leadership that Works.
