Whales and Fish

Ask a young child where a fish lives, and they will likely answer, "In the ocean." While it's true that fish live in the ocean, they also live in lakes, rivers, and even little ponds of water. Whales live in water just like fish, but are whales fish?

The most significant similarity between whales and fish is that they both live in an aquatic environment. Fish can live in freshwater or saltwater, depending on the species. Whales live primarily in the saltwater of the ocean. Whales and fish have similar physical features like fins, a tail, and scaly skin. This leads many to believe that whales are a type of fish. However, this is not the case.

One of the biggest differences between whales and fish is that whales are warm-blooded mammals. They give birth to their young and nurse them to growth. Fish, on the other hand, are cold-blooded. Their body temperature changes according to the water surrounding them. Fish lay eggs in the water and do not nurse their young.

Whales breathe air and have lungs. They must swim up to the surface of the water to get air through their blowhole, which is connected to their lungs. This provides their lungs with the oxygen needed for whales to survive. In contrast, fish have gills. Gills are little slits on the side of a fish that allow water to flow through. The gills separate oxygen from water to allow fish to breathe.

Another difference between whales and fish is the way they move through the water. Whales move their body through the water with the help of their horizontal tail. It flaps up and down in the water. Contrary to the whales, horizontal tail, fish have a vertical tail that moves from side to side.

Thanks to the information described above, one can agree that whales are certainly not a type of fish.
