neurology A fully updated and authoritative neurology resource. The Queen Square Textbook has established itself as a favourite companion to clinical neurosciences training and teaching around the world whilst retaining its role as an invaluable reference guide for physicians and other healthcare professionals working in neurology, general medicine and related specialties. The book continues to reflect the core values essential to the practice of clinical neurology in the 21st century. The third edition has been extensively revised and updated to take account of the rapid pace of progress in the neurosciences and patient care. Contemporary neurology has been changed by the COVID-19 pandemic, the climate emergency and the growing inequalities in healthcare resources. The new edition has been extensively revised to reflect these challenges and affords a greater emphasis on management and rehabilitation whilst continuing to reflect the coherence of a text produced from a single closely knit centre of excellence. Highlights of the new edition include:

- An updated approach to clinical examination, decision making and diagnosis.
- New developments in neuroimmunology, pathology and genetics.
- Neuropalliative care, ethical and legal issues in clinical neurology.

- An emphasis on treatment and rehabilitation of the person with a neurological disease.

In addition symptoms of early MS are often attributed to depression and when this occurs symptoms of MS go untreated and patients feel helpless and frustrated about their current health. This comprehensive review identifies and integrates specific areas that appear to be the most researched in relation to depression in the MS population. The purpose of this dissertation is to integrate the literature to provide clarification and assistance in determining when patients are affected by depression MS or both so that the disorders can be treated appropriately. Furthermore a decision making checklist has been developed to help facilitate this process.
