Notes From A Dead House:

Notes from a Dead House Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2015-03-24 From the acclaimed translators Richard Pevear and Larissa Volokhonsky comes a new translation of the first great prison memoir Fyodor Dostoevsky's fictionalized account of his life changing penal servitude in Siberia. In 1849 Dostoevsky was sentenced to four years at hard labor in a Siberian prison camp for his participation in a utopian socialist discussion group. The account he wrote after his release based on notes he smuggled out was the first book to reveal life inside the Russian penal system. The book not only brought him fame but also founded the tradition of Russian prison writing. Notes from a Dead House sometimes translated as The House of the Dead is filled with vivid details of brutal punishments, shocking conditions, feuds and betrayals and the psychological effects of the loss of freedom but it also describes moments of comedy and acts of kindness. There are grotesque bathhouse and hospital scenes that seem to have come straight from Dante's Inferno alongside daring escape attempts, doomed acts of defiance and a theatrical Christmas celebration that draws the entire community together in a temporary suspension of their grim reality. To get past government censors Dostoevsky made his narrator a common law criminal rather than a political prisoner but the perspective is unmistakably his own. His incarceration was a transformative experience that nourished all his later works particularly Crime and Punishment. Dostoevsky's narrator discovers that even among the most debased criminals there are strong and beautiful souls. His story reveals the prison as a tragedy both for the inmates and for Russia it is finally a profound meditation on freedom. The prisoner himself knows that he is a prisoner but no brands, no fetters will make him forget that he is a human being.

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2022-04-14 Close your eyes and imagine the horrors of being sentenced to hard labour at an isolated Siberian prison camp. The torturous conditions, the brutality of the guards and the suffering of your everyday life. The House of the Dead is a semi-autobiographical novel by Fyodor Dostoevsky. The author uses autofiction to be able to use facts, fiction and to discuss topics that have happened to him while he was imprisoned. The primitive conditions and horrifying episodes in the prison camp mirror the author's own exile in such a camp for four years in 1849. The novel focuses on the exploration of the Russian character mostly depicted in times of trouble and hardship. The themes of crime, punishment and isolation run potent in this haunting novel where the reader has to suffer and endure the arduous path through the house of the dead in order to be born again into freedom. A five star reading recommendation. Fyodor Dostoevsky (1821-1881) was a famous Russian writer of novels, short stories and essays. A connoisseur of the troubled human psyche and the relationships between the individuals, Dostoevsky's oeuvre covers a large area of subjects: politics, religion, social issues, philosophy and the uncharted realms of the psychological. There have been at least 30 film and TV adaptations of Fyodor Dostoyevsky's 1866 novel Crime and Punishment with probably the most popular being the British BBC TV series starring John Simm as Raskolnikov and Ian McDiarmid as Porfiry Petrovich. The Idiot has also been adapted for films and TV as has Demons and The Brothers Karamazov.

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2022-11-13

In The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky intricately weaves a semi autobiographical narrative that delves into the grim realities of life in a Siberian labor camp. This profound work is marked by its psychological depth and existential themes exploring the dehumanization and moral complexities faced by the inmates. Through rich descriptions and a starkly realist style, Dostoyevsky captures the harshness of their environment while probing into the inner lives of his characters, highlighting their struggles with guilt, redemption, and humanity against a backdrop of societal corruption and despair. Dostoyevsky's own harrowing experiences in a Siberian prison following his involvement with radical political groups significantly influenced his writing of this novel. These personal trials coupled with his deep philosophical inquiries into faith and morality shed light on the desperation and resilience displayed in The House of the Dead. The novel is not merely a reflection of his captivity but a critical examination of the human condition underscored by the author's poignant insights into morality and spirituality. I highly recommend The House of the Dead to readers who seek a profound exploration of the human psyche and ethical dilemmas. It is an essential read that invites contemplation and empathy, providing a powerful lens through which to understand suffering, redemption, and the enduring strength of the human spirit.

The House of the Dead is a semi-autobiographical novel published in 1861. It was first published in the journal "Vremya" by Russian author Fyodor Dostoyevsky, which portrays the life of convicts in a Siberian prison camp. The novel has also been published under the titles "Memoirs from the House of the Dead" and "Notes from the Dead House". The book is a loosely knit collection of facts, events, and philosophical discussion, organised by theme rather than as a continuous story. The narrator, Aleksandr Petrovich Goryanchikov, has been sentenced to deportation to Siberia and ten years of hard labour for murdering his wife. Life in prison is particularly hard for Aleksandr Petrovich since he is a gentleman and suffers the malice of the other prisoners nearly all of whom belong to the peasantry Gradually Goryanchikov overcomes his revulsion at his situation and his fellow convicts undergoing a spiritual re awakening that culminates with his release from the camp It is a work of great humanity Dostoevsky portrays the inmates of the prison with sympathy for their plight and also expresses admiration for their energy ingenuity and talent He concludes that the existence of the prison with its absurd practices and savage corporal punishments is a tragic fact both for the prisoners and for Russia

Redemption and the Merchant God Susan McReynolds Oddo,2008 Dostoyevsky s antisemitism manifested in his writings of the 1870s seems to contradict his humanism and many critics have tended to dismiss it as a marginal detail of the writer s views Argues however that antisemitism held an important place in Dostoyevsky s ethical system and was linked to his vexed relationship with Christianity Notes that he staunchly held three ethical principles sanctity of children incompatibility of ethics with utilitarianism and calculation and the view that every kind of authority was bound by the same moral strictures as individuals Thus he could not accept a God who had sacrificed his son or a redemption brought about by the suffering of a child Jesus Dostoyevsky invented the image of a Jew onto whom he could project everything that was unacceptable to him in religion and Western ethics He considered the merchant ethics of both liberalism and socialism to be a Jewish idea and in particular regarded the politics of the Jew Disraeli as an embodiment of such ethics to sacrifice innocent Balkan Slavs in the name of supreme political principles In the 1870s Dostoyevsky increasingly contrasted the Russian conception of God and compassion for the weak with the Jewish Western merchant God and the idea of obtaining benefits for one person from the suffering of another innocent person He developed a conception of principal opposition between things Russian and things Jewish
