Acuesta,2023-12-04 Academic Paper from the year 2023 in the subject Pedagogy General language English abstract Parental involvement in children s education is a topic of contemporary interest and significance in the line of educational research Parents are oftentimes regarded as the child s first teachers and their actions largely influence their children s education and learning As guardians guides and mentors the parents possess the power to actively support and massively subordinate their children s development as students The study aimed to investigate the relationship between parents involvement and the academic performance of the students within the unique context of the University of Cebu at Pardo and Talisay Inc The research used a correlational approach to determine whether there is a significant relationship between parents involvement and the student s academic performance Utilizing the correlational design relationships between the variables are examined without any of the variables being under the researchers direct control or manipulation The results of the study showed that there is a positive correlation between the variables However the study also found that some students experience parental pressure which can have a negative impact on their academic performance It is recommended that parents find a balance between involvement and pressure to support their children s academic success and inform the development of strategies to promote and enhance positive parenting both at home and in educational settings to benefit students intellectual development

Parental Involvement Role Liam Brown,2025-02-21 Parental Involvement Role explores the significant impact of parents on their children s education and academic success It examines how different forms of parental involvement like parent teacher communication and learning at home shape student performance The book argues that strategic parental engagement is a key factor in predicting academic success and that parents can contribute to their children s education in many ways. The book uses case studies from diverse educational settings to provide concrete examples of successful and unsuccessful parental engagement. For instance, it highlights how parental involvement can influence a child's social emotional development and attendance. The book emphasizes that there isn't a one size fits all approach and that cultural capital and sociological factors play a role in shaping the relationship between parental involvement and student outcomes. The book presents information in three major sections starting with core concepts and impact analysis followed by case studies and then sociological research. It uses an accessible style avoiding technical jargon and is intended for a broad audience including parents, educators, and policymakers.

Cultivating Parental Involvement in Middle Schools: A Case Study Dr. Marcia Griffiths-Prince, 2009-11-23. This book is about the perceptions of middle school teachers, parents, and administrators regarding parental involvement. The research gathered can be used to improve the relationship between home and school, ultimately increasing academic performance and partnership among the two entities. Teachers, School Administrators, and Students in Teacher Preparation Programs will find this book to be a tremendous resource for academic success and partnership building.

Parental Involvement in Learning. Implication to the Academic Achievement of Learners Louie Sanlad, 2019-10-31. Research Paper postgraduate from the year 2019 in the subject Didactics, Politics, Political Education, grade 1, 300 course, Doctor in Development Education, language English, abstract. The purpose of this paper is to discuss parental involvement in learning and its implication to the academic achievement of learners. It discusses parental involvement in learning, parents as leaders, parents as active partners in learning, and parent school connection. Also, it shows the challenges of parental involvement in learning, strategies for encouraging parental involvement in learning, and the benefits of parental involvement. After a thorough review of the previous studies and based on the readings, this paper concluded that parental involvement is associated with a wide range of positive child outcomes in schools such as good academic skills, positive attitudes, and social competence. Parental involvement is a combination of commitment and active participation on the part of the parent to the school and to the student. There are many problems concerned with involvement. Organizations that advocate for education at the grassroots level are growing in number and they are working to organize parents, offering increased opportunities for parents to engage in education policy issues. The recommendation of this paper is to have a parental involvement in learning to make learning for children pleasant and encourages them to work even more as they seek to make those closest to them proud.

The Impact of Parent Participation and Involvement in Pupils Academic Performance, 2017-11-20. Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2016 in the subject Education, Reading, Instruction, grade A, Atlantic International University, EDUCATION course, EDUCATION MANAGEMENT, language English, abstract. The mediating role of parents seems to be having a paramount effect on the child development, child academic performance, child's aspirations, and overall child achievement. Based on the findings of the study, the researcher has been able to identify the effect of parent participation and involvement on the academic performance of their children in primary schools. Some of the required areas that require parents to get involved in include providing scholastic materials packing food for lunch attending school meetings and school days providing health care providing safety and security doing voluntary work at school assisting in doing homework providing support to the child and providing life skills among other duties

Parental Involvement and Children's Academic Success

Annette M. Villapudua, 2018 Student academic success has been associated with parental involvement in many studies. This study explored the relationship between parental involvement at school and at home and the effect it had on student success. Information was gathered from students and parents regarding parent involvement at home and at school. Student interviews were conducted to gather information regarding after school routines and support at home. In addition, parent questionnaire provided information on parent school involvement as well as information regarding involvement with homework. The data indicated that there is a positive relationship between parental involvement with homework and student academic success. Data regarding the relationship between parent involvement at school and academic success was inconclusive. However, it is important that teachers and parents work together to ensure that students are getting the support they need to be successful.

Influences of Parental Expectations and Involvement on Academic Success

Kate E. Holmes, California State University, Sacramento, 2013 The percentage of students who graduated on time from California high schools in the 2010-2011 school year rose 1.5% from the previous year. However, there is still a concerning percentage of students who are choosing to drop out of school. California Department of Education, 2012. It is groups of these students as well as others whose grades, attendance, and work completion are inconsistent. The desire to determine why students succeed or fail was the catalyst for this study. A review of the literature pertaining to this topic revealed a multitude of possible influences to school success. However, this study focused on only two of these possible influences: parental involvement and parental expectations. Part of the reason for the focus on these topics was for educators to understand how parental involvement and parental expectations are related to student success in a specific setting, thereby bringing possible areas for improvement into the foreground that have the capacity to increase student achievement. Data for this study was collected by using student surveys and interviews. The surveys were created to measure factors related to parental involvement and parental expectations. Approximately sixty students participated in the survey process. After the surveys were completed, interview questions were generated to expand and explain the initial findings from the survey. A total of six students participated in the interviews and responses from five of those interviews were used. The data offered by both the surveys and interviews were then analyzed and interpreted, providing the study's final conclusions and answers to its research questions. This study asked two primary questions: 1. For students in an independent study school in Northern California, what is the relationship between levels of parental involvement and academic outcomes? 2. For this same population of students, are the academic expectations parents have for their children related to academic outcomes? For the first question, it was determined that a positive relationship exists between parental involvement and academic achievement.

The answer to the second question was that parental expectations do not influence students to perform at a level that meets their parents expectations The Impact of Parental Involvement on Student Success: School and Family Partnership from the Perspective of Parents and Teachers Audric C. This research study examined the correlation between student achievement and parent's perceptions of their involvement in their child's schooling Parent participants completed the Parent Involvement Project Parent Questionnaire Results slightly indicated parents of students with higher level of achievement perceived less demand or invitations from their child and that students with higher levels of academic achievement had parents who felt they had the time energy or skills to assist with school related activities The results strongly indicate that students with higher levels of achievement had parents who reported higher levels of involvement in school related activities Page 4 Parental Influence on Educational Success and Wellbeing Gamez, Ana

Maria,2024-05-06 Within parenting a complex dynamic emerges as empirical research intersects with practical applications Parental Influence on Educational Success and Wellbeing navigates uncharted territories in parenting research tackling pivotal issues like culture minority experiences lifespan perspectives disabilities and the convergence of medical and legal dimensions Its uniqueness lies in theoretical exploration and in providing tangible solutions offering parents concrete best practices and strategies This book is an indispensable resource for parents seeking to navigate the multifaceted challenges of nurturing their children in diverse contexts By integrating insights from various dimensions of parenting research the book equips parents with a nuanced understanding of how their actions reverberate through their child's life influencing academic achievement and emotional well being Relational Aspects of Parental Involvement to Support Educational Outcomes

William Jeynes,2022-07-18 Offering contributions from international leaders in the field this volume builds on empirically informed meta analyses to foreground relationship based aspects of parental involvement in children's education and learning Chapters explore how factors including parent child communication cultural and parental expectations as well as communication with a child's teacher and school can impact educational outcomes By focusing on relationships between parents teachers and students chapter authors offer a nuanced picture of parental involvement in children's education and learning. Considering variation across countries educational and non educational contexts and challenges posed by parental absence and home schooling the book offers key insights into how parents schools communities and educators can best support future generations. Using multiple forms of research from the relational perspective this volume will be of interest to students scholars and researchers with an interest in educational psychology as well as child development. School Systems, Parent Behavior, and Academic Achievement Emma Sorbring, Jennifer E. Lansford, 2019-09-17. This volume takes an international and multidisciplinary approach to understanding students academic achievement. It does so by integrating educational literature with developmental psychology and family studies perspectives. Each of the nine chapters focuses on a particular country China Colombia Italy Jordan Kenya the Philippines Sweden Thailand or the United States. It describes the country as a cultural context examines the current school system and parenting in light of the school system and provides empirical evidence from that country regarding links between parenting and students academic achievement. The book highlights similarities and differences in education and parenting across these nine countries all varying widely in socioeconomic and cultural factors that affect schools and families. The volume contributes to greater understanding of links between parenting and academic performance in different cultural groups. It sheds light on how school systems and parenting are embedded in larger cultural settings that have implications for students educational experiences and academic achievement. As two of the most important contexts in which children and adolescents spend time understanding how schools and families jointly contribute to academic achievement holds promise for advancing the international agenda of promoting quality education for all.

The Effect of Parent Involvement on Student Achievement Onenee G. Saloka, 2009. The rationale of this literature review is to demonstrate a relationship between parent involvement and student academic success. Research reviewed all confirm positive correlation and reject the opposite. The key elements include parent involvement responsibility and participation in their children's education collaboration between teacher parent student and school home learning environment support. Parental involvement is a mixture of dedication and active participation on the part of the parent to the school and to the student. There are many problems concerned with involvement. Many schools simply do not know how to deal with the nontraditional family and the areas of concern that it represents. The number of solutions that can be used to improve parental involvement are extensive. The most important of these however is for the school to be totally devoted. When these solutions are implemented the effects are great especially for the student.

leaf 4 Parental Involvement and Pupils' Academic Achievement Yuko Oso Willis, Hamud Abdillahi Mukhtar, 2015-07-15. Parental involvement is participation of parents in regular 2 way meaningful communication about the child's academic learning and other school activities. It is believed that if pupils are to maximize their potential from schooling then parental support is necessary. Global trend is to give parents increased role in governing schools. In Somaliland since the introduction of FPE in 2011 parents have assumed a greater role in the running of schools However the influence of parental involvement on pupils academic achievement had not been investigated This study investigated the influence of parental involvement on academic achievement of pupils in public primary schools in Borama District using survey of 291 pupils from 19 public primary schools in Borama District Home teaching F 1 291 3 87 p 024 parenting F 1 291 3 87 p 042 parental communication F 1 291 4 60 p 036 and collaborating F 1 291 5 46 p 020 had significant influence on the academic achievement of pupils in public primary schools in Borama District The study concluded that parental involvement has a significant influence on academic achievement of the pupils
