Genaway,1984 The Digital Word George P. Landow,Paul Delany,1993 This book explores the larger realm of the knowledge infrastructure where texts are received reconstructed and sent over global networks The sixteen essays collected in The Digital Word continue Landow and Delany s exploration of the new fluid digitized text begun in Hypermedia and Literary Studies 1991 which focused on the linking of text graphics or sound into structures typically bound within a single computer or local area network This book explores the larger realm of the knowledge infrastructure where texts are received reconstructed and sent over global networks It covers text management textual resources and communication and working with texts In their introductory essay Landow and Delany address the impact of such developments as the dematerialization of text which exists only as a piece of code and the manipulability of text based computing searches editing comparison and analysis which shifts the balance of power from text to reader Digital texts the law sources distribution and management of texts and the need for new procedures that will make explorations of the boundless universe of text more effective are touched on as well Current examinations of text management include the FreeText Project and personal information retrieval a taxonomy of text management software and markup systems including a clear authoritative discussion of Standard Generalized Markup Languages Essays in the next section take up such disparate aspects of textual resources and communications as corpus based linguistics networked library services personal docuverses for the individual scholar and the new forms of scholarly communications created by electronic mail and electronic conferencing A concluding section on working with texts surveys what has been variously called computer criticism computer aided criticism and electronic text analysis in relation to textual editing literary interpretation and our practice of reading and writing in an electronic age "Free Access to Information" Ellen Hjortsæter,1997 Library Closures Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Culture, Media and Sport Committee,2012-11-06 Recent campaigns against the closure of local libraries have highlighted the strong attachment that many people feel to their library services However much of the focus of the campaigns has been on library branches rather than the broader question of the preservation and possible enhancement of the library service Reductions in opening hours and the loss of professional staff may damage the service more than the closure of particular buildings The provision of a library service is a statutory duty but a number of councils have drawn up plans that fail to comply with the requirement to provide a comprehensive and efficient service A full assessment of the needs of the local population for the services is key Guidance on how to assess local needs does exist but more must be done to disseminate it Although the future of public libraries may be uncertain there is opportunity for reassessment of their roles and how they are organised The Committee saw many examples of innovative thinking about what libraries can offer to the local population and a number of models of how those services might be provided Councils which have transferred the running of libraries to community volunteers must continue to provide support otherwise failure may be viewed as closures by stealth The Committee looks forward to the promised report by the end of 2014 on the cumulative effect on library services of the cuts in local authority provision and the promotion of alternatives such as transfers to community volunteers     Library & Information Science Abstracts ,2008     Library Currents ,2000
