Meaningful Differences In The Everyday Experience Of Young American Children:

Meaningful Differences in the Everyday Experience of Young American Children Betty Hart, Todd R. Risley, 1995

Meaningful Differences in the Everyday Experience of Young American Children is the story of the landmark research study that uncovered the widely cited word gap between children from low income homes and their more economically advantaged peers. This groundbreaking research has spurred hundreds of studies and programs including the White House's Bridging the Word Gap campaign and Too Small to Fail, a joint initiative of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Clinton Foundation. Betty Hart and Todd Risley wanted to know why, despite best efforts in preschool programs to equalize opportunity, children from low income homes remain well behind their more economically advantaged peers years later in school. Each month they recorded one full hour of every word spoken at home between parent and child in 42 families categorized as professional, working class, or welfare families. Two and a half years of coding and analyzing every utterance in 1,318 transcripts followed. By age 3, the recorded spoken vocabularies of the children from the professional families were larger than those of the children in the welfare families. Between professional and welfare parents, there was a difference of almost 300 words spoken per hour. Extrapolating this verbal interaction to four years, a child in a professional family would accumulate experience with almost 45 million words, while an average child in a welfare family would hear just 13 million. Coining the phrase "the 30 million word gap," the implications of this painstaking study are staggering. Hart and Risley's follow-up studies at age 9 show that the large differences in children's language experience were tightly linked to large differences in child outcomes. As the authors note in their preface to the 2002 printing of Meaningful Differences, the most important aspect to evaluate in child care settings for very young children is the amount of talk actually going on moment by moment between children and their caregivers. By giving children positive interactions and experiences with adults who take the time to teach vocabulary, oral language concepts, and emergent literacy concepts, children should have a better chance to succeed at school and in the workplace. Learn more about how parent and children's language interactions affect learning to talk in Hart and Risley's companion book The Social World of Children: Learning to Talk.

This major new book describes the parent-child interactions of the language acquisition years, revealing differences in the experiences of one- and two-year-olds from families across a spectrum of socioeconomic status. The authors show how the amount of time parents spend talking to their children in the early years of life directly influences children's future accomplishments.

At a Loss for Words Betty Lynn Segal Bardige, 2005-05-09

Drawing on the latest research on development among toddlers and preschoolers, At a Loss for Words lays out the importance of getting parents, policy makers, and child care providers to recognize the role of early literacy skills in reducing the achievement gap that begins before three years of age. Readers are guided through home and classroom settings that promote language, contrasting them with the merely mediocre child care settings in which more and more young children spend increasing amounts of time Too many of our young children are not receiving the level of input and practice that will enable them to acquire language skills the key to success in school and life Bardige explains how to build better community support systems for children and better public education in order to ensure that toddlers learn the power of language from their families and teachers The Reading Leadership Academy Guidebook, 2002 Presentations and resources about scientifically based reading research Cover How to Avoid the Mommy Trap Julie Shields, 2003 The essential guide for mothers and potential mothers who want to share childrearing responsibilities with men Toward a Humanist Justice Debra Satz, Rob Reich, 2009-06-15 The late Susan Moller Okin was a leading political theorist whose scholarship integrated political philosophy and issues of gender the family and culture Okin argued that liberalism properly understood as a theory opposed to social hierarchies and supportive of individual freedom and equality provided the tools for criticizing the substantial and systematic inequalities between men and women Her thought was deeply informed by a feminist view that theories of justice must apply equally to women as men and she was deeply engaged in showing how many past and present political theories failed to do this She sought to rehabilitate political theories particularly that of liberal egalitarianism in such a way as to accommodate the equality of the sexes and with an eye toward improving the condition of women and families in a world of massive gender inequalities In her lifetime Okin was widely respected as a scholar whose engagement went well beyond the world of theory and her premature death in 2004 was considered by many a major blow to progressive political thought and women s interests around the world This volume stems from a conference on Okin and contains articles by some of the top feminist and political philosophers working today They are organized around a set of themes central to Okin s work namely liberal theory gender and the family feminist and cultural differences and global justice Included are major figures such as Joshua Cohen David Miller Cass Sunstein Alison Jaggar and Iris Marion Young among others Their aim is not to celebrate Okin s work but to constructively engage with it and further its goals Justice for Earthlings David Miller, 2013-01-10 David Miller explores what justice means for real people and challenges philosophical theories that ignore the facts of human life Parent-Child Interaction Therapy Cheryl Bodiford McNeil, Toni L.
