Affordances that Promote Well-Being for (Urban) People and for a Healthy Biosphere Stephan Barthel, Marketta Kyttä, 2020-01-30 The world is urbanizing at an unprecedented rate. It is estimated that in the near future urban landscapes for another ca 2.7 billion people will be built on planet Earth approximately converting land equivalent to the size of South Africa. Such land conversion coupled with citizen densification increasing in equalities shifting diets and emerging technologies challenge human well-being and pose ever increasing demand for resources generated by the Biosphere. This Research Topic concentrates on the various ways urbanization can promote individual well-being mental physical and social health as well as ecological health a healthy Biosphere. What kind of affordances for human health promotion can urbanization include? What kinds of affordances for a psychological connection with nature can urbanization include? What kinds of nudges for pro environmental behavior and consumption decreasing detrimental consumption behaviors can be actively designed in urban settings? The Research Topic at hand uses a transactional approach where an affordance can be understood as a non deterministic in situ precondition for a human activity enabled by relations between abilities of an individual with features of an environment. We encourage a broad definition of the concept of affordances where the environment must not be restricted to the material biophysical environment alone but also could be combined with social immaterial features. We see that the transactional approach of this Research Topic posits that meaning arises in relations between humans and their environment that it will be equally applicable to natural and designed environments and that it doesn't regard dichotomies like city contra nature or social contra ecological. Hence this Research Topic is interested in if the transactional approach can be used as a conceptual tool not only for promotion of mental physical and social health in cities but simultaneously for unraveling relations at the micro scale in cities which can be used for solutions that also promote a healthy Biosphere.

Foundations of Musical Grammar Lawrence Michael Zbikowski, 2017 How is it that humans are able to organize seemingly random sounds into the captivating sonic structures we call music? In this volume Lawrence M. Zbikowski argues that humans' unique ability to correlate sounds with dynamic processes provides the basis for the construction of meaningful musical utterances that is a foundation for musical grammar Building on a framework for grammar developed by cognitive linguists over the past three decades and the pathbreaking research set out in his earlier book Conceptualizing Music OUP 2002 Zbikowski explains how the ability to draw analogies between widely differing domains allowing humans to connect sequences of musical sounds with emotion processes physical gestures and the steps of dance He shows how these connections underpin an evocative movement from a cantata by J S Bach guide our understanding of gestural choreographies by Fred Astaire and Charlie Chaplin and frame connections between movement and music in French courtly dance and the Viennese waltz Through thorough surveys of research in cognitive science and careful analyses of works by composers ranging from Bach Brahms and Schubert to Jerome Kern Zbikowski explores the unique resources for communication offered by music and examines how these differ from those of language Foundations of Musical Grammar is sure to be an instant and enticingly controversial classic within the evolving literature addressing the many complex intersections of music and language from dust jacket
