operation of engineering economic organizational and other systems are represented as sequences of operations performed on material information or other types of flows Typical examples are processes of connection of telephone users data transmission and processing calculation at multi user computer centers and queueing at service centers The models studied by the theory of service systems or queueing theory are used to describe such processes The more pessimistic term queueing theory is used more often in the non Soviet literature Random arrivals requests for service probability distributions defining queueing processes distributions of service times and acceptable waiting times and structure parameters customer priorities parameters that delimit acceptable queues parameters that define paths of customers etc are characteristic components of queueing models Typical output characteristics of queueing models are the probability distributions of queue lengths waiting times lengths of busy periods and so forth Revue Roumaine de Mathématiques Pures Et Appliquées ,1987
