The President
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

The ongoing spread of the coronavirus (COVID-19) in the United States and around the world has emerged as the greatest crisis in a generation. As the CEO of Uber, I am accountable to many, but I believe my greatest responsibility in the face of unprecedented economic challenge is to the millions of people who drive and deliver on Uber's platform. It is with that responsibility in mind that I respectfully and urgently request that the economic stimulus you are considering, along with any other future legislative measures in response to COVID-19, include protections and benefits for independent workers, not just employees. My goal in writing to you is not to ask for a bailout for Uber, but rather for support for the independent workers on our platform and, once we move past the immediate crisis, the opportunity to legally provide them with a real safety net going forward.

The uncertainty caused by COVID-19 is being felt everywhere. It has already created deep concern and hardship for many of the 1.3 million Americans working on Uber's platform. Drivers and delivery people are on the front lines of keeping our communities running, helping get food to those staying home and providing essential transportation services to those who must move around. That's why Uber led our industry in offering up to 14 days of financial assistance to active drivers and delivery people who are diagnosed with COVID-19 or placed in individual quarantine by a public health authority due to their risk of transmitting COVID-19. We are also taking other measures to protect the health and well-being of everyone who uses Uber, including working to provide drivers with free disinfectant supplies, as soon as they become commercially available, waiving delivery fees for Uber Eats orders from more than 100,000 independent restaurants, and regularly communicating important safety tips to our customers, including reminding Americans opening the Uber app that they should only travel if necessary.

We know we need to do more. We firmly believe that the protections and benefits afforded independent workers, who today represent a large and growing portion of the workforce, must be strengthened. We are ready to do our part, but we need new laws to let us take bolder action. Two years ago, I joined labor and business leaders to call for a new approach that would give independent workers the ability to protect themselves and their loved ones if they are injured at work, get sick, or when it's time to retire.

The crisis we find ourselves in today has only highlighted the urgent need for such reform. And it has underscored a key problem with existing labor law: each time a company provides additional benefits to independent workers, the less independent they become, and, without legislative clarity, the more
