PV Charging and Storage for Electric Vehicles Pavol Bauer, Gautham Ram Chandra Mouli, 2021-09-02 Electric vehicles are only green as long as the source of electricity is green as well. At the same time, renewable power production suffers from diurnal and seasonal variations, creating the need for energy storage technology. Moreover, overloading and voltage problems are expected in the distributed network due to the high penetration of distributed generation and increased power demand from the charging of electric vehicles. The energy and mobility transition hence calls for novel technological innovations in the field of sustainable electric mobility powered from renewable energy. This Special Issue focuses on recent advances in technology for PV charging and storage for electric vehicles. Automotive Web Sites Todd A. Poland, the case study in question, represents a unique laboratory of automobile revolution during the late 20th and early 21st centuries. The volume brings to the fore several key aspects of the car market such as car ownership, markets for new cars, import of second hand cars, car use, electromobility, and environmental impact. Many of them are the subject of a global debate in the context of achieving sustainable development goals. Others meanwhile point to the unique nature of transformations related to the car market in Poland. Altogether, consideration of these aspects enriches the international literature with new results and findings that will broaden the field of discussion on the car market onto the emerging economies, especially those of Central and Eastern Europe. The book combines the results of quantitative and qualitative research. The former is based on a big data set: ca. 40 million vehicles, and the latter on an in depth social survey questionnaire interviews with more than 4 000 drivers. The discussion of the geography of automobile revolution is linked to other social, economic, and spatial phenomena and processes, e.g. urban sprawl or rural marginalisation, consumer decisions, and the evolution of quality of life, and the development of individual entrepreneurship or environmental protection, as well as to transport tax and customs policies. The analysis of the dynamics of change pays particular attention to the role of critical junctures such as the collapse of the communist system, EU membership, the world financial crisis 2007-2009, and the first period of COVID-19 pandemic 2020-2021. The book will be of
