The Unique Characteristics of the Paleolithic Era
The Paleolithic Era (c. 2.5 million years ago to c. 10,000 years ago)

The Paleolithic Era, also known as the Old Stone Age, was a time when early humans relied on tools made from stone. This period, lasting from about 2.5 million years ago to roughly 10,000 BCE, is considered one of the most important eras in human history.

One of the defining characteristics of the Paleolithic Era was the nomadic lifestyle. Early humans, known as hunter-gatherers, did not settle in one location but instead lived in temporary shelters and moved from place to place in search of food. They hunted large animals like mammoths and gathered wild fruits, nuts, and berries.

Another key feature of the Paleolithic Era was the development of simple tools. Early humans used stone to create tools like spears, knives, and axes. These tools were essential for hunting and gathering.

Art and culture also emerged during this time. Early humans created cave paintings and carvings, which are still visible today. These artworks often depicted animals and human figures, suggesting a rich cultural life.
