Key Scholarship in Media Literacy: David Buckingham Allison T. Butler, 2020-11-30

We live in a time of unprecedented media use, much of which can be accessed by devices that fit in our pockets. Young people, in particular, make use of media on a near constant basis. How can this media use be better understood? This text focuses on the scholarship and research of David Buckingham, a global leader in media literacy education and children's and young people's media cultures. It is not an exaggeration to state that studies and applications of media literacy education around the globe are indebted to the scholarship of Buckingham and that more nuanced understandings of how children and young people make sense of their media choices are due in large part to Buckingham's work. Key Scholarship in Media Literacy David Buckingham focuses on the key contributions of Buckingham's work over his prolific career illuminating the advances he made in the field of media literacy education and understandings of young people's media cultures. Through a close look at Buckingham's theoretical advancements contributions to the larger field of media literacy education and the key strains of his research how children and young people learn what they already know about media and pop culture before they enter classrooms and media content about and for youth this text delineates Buckingham's vast bibliography and will be an invaluable resource for anyone curious to know more about children youth and media literacy education. Analysis of Buckingham's work is drawn from his robust bibliography exploration of scholarship he has critiqued interpretation of contemporary social concerns through the lens of his research and formal and informal conversations with him over the course of several years.

Media Literacy in a Disruptive Media Environment William G. Christ, Belinha S. International Handbook of Media Literacy Education Belinha S. De Abreu, Paul Mihailidis, Alice Y.L. Lee, Jad Melki, Julian McDougall, 2017-04-21 At the forefront in its field this Handbook examines the theoretical conceptual pedagogical and methodological development of media literacy education and research around the world. Building on traditional media literacy frameworks in critical analysis evaluation and assessment it incorporates new literacies emerging around connective technologies mobile platforms and social networks. A global perspective rather than a Western centric point of view is explicitly highlighted with contributors from all continents to show the empirical research being done at the intersection of media education and engagement in daily life. Structured around five themes Educational Interventions Safeguarding Data and Online Privacy Engagement in Civic Life Media Creativity and Production Digital Media Literacy the volume as a whole emphasizes the competencies needed to engage in meaningful participation in digital culture. The Routledge Companion to Media Education, Copyright, and Fair Use Renee Hobbs, 2018-02-15 Media literacy educators rely on the ability to make use of copyrighted materials from mass media digital media and popular culture for both analysis and production activities Whether they work in higher education elementary and secondary schools or in informal learning settings in libraries community and non profit organizations educators know that the practice of media literacy depends on a robust interpretation of copyright and fair use With chapters written by leading scholars and practitioners from the fields of media studies education writing and rhetoric law and society library and information studies and the digital humanities this companion provides a scholarly and professional context for understanding the ways in which new conceptualizations of copyright and fair use are shaping the pedagogical practices of media literacy Rethinking Online Education Bessie Mitsikopoulou,2015-11-17 Rethinking Online Education analyzes online educational materials on the recent Iraq war aimed to be used by U S educators in elementary and secondary schools It is suggested that far from being ideologically neutral these educational materials weave together resources which provide a coherent view of the Iraq war theme and can thus been seen as constituting a kind of an informal curriculum Mitsikopoulou argues that the teacher resources adhere to different pedagogical discourses and constitute materializations of two broad approaches to education A number of pedagogical issues are also raised in the discussion What is the difference between critical thinking and critical pedagogy How is the genre of lesson plan realized in different teaching philosophies and how do curricular texts change when they are delivered online This important book highlights the need to explore the new forms of textuality which emerge from online curricular materials and to develop an understanding of the processes of text composition distribution and consumption

New Media and New Literacies Brian Thomas Reilly,1998 Children and the Internet Sonia Livingstone,2013-05-06 Is the internet really transforming children and young people s lives Is the so called digital generation genuinely benefiting from exciting new opportunities And worryingly facing new risks This major new book by a leading researcher addresses these pressing questions It deliberately avoids a techno celebratory approach and instead interprets children s everyday practices of internet use in relation to the complex and changing historical and cultural conditions of childhood in late modernity Uniquely Children and the Internet reveals the complex dynamic between online opportunities and online risks exploring this in relation to much debated issues such as Digital in exclusion Learning and literacy Peer networking and privacy Civic participation Risk and harm Drawing on current theories of identity development education and participation this book includes a refreshingly critical account of the challenging realities undermining the great expectations held out for the internet from governments teachers parents and children themselves It concludes with a forward looking framework for policy and regulation designed to advance children s rights to expression connection and play online as well as offline

Rethinking Media Literacy Peter McLaren,1995 Who creates the cultural landscape we experience When we watch the evening news are we receiving unrevised information straight from the day s headlines or is it positioned in such a way as to manufacture consent as Chomsky put it These are just two of the fascinating questions posed by the authors of this collection as they develop a new form of media literacy that encourages students to become critical readers of the media that attempts to shape their experience This is an intriguing and wide ranging critique that makes the perfect text for a variety of courses including curriculum studies critical pedagogy media studies cultural studies and political science American Book Publishing Record ,2006 Early Years Curriculum Materials ,2006 The following case study is presented as an example of how a unit can emerge by teachers drawing on children s interests and implicit knowledge and using teachable moments and focused learning and teaching to develop explicit understandings about literacies The teacher observed that the group of Preparatory Year children regularly choose to discuss their personal experiences of familiar media texts as they ate lunch or in other group settings These texts helped the children begin to understand explicitly that many texts use words sounds and images to communicate meaning After children used familiar media texts they could learn to read and co construct texts and view themselves as capable users of cultural texts This topic also provided opportunities to question meaning in texts and children s assumptions about their world Media Literacy is Elementary Jeff Share,2009 Researchers in a range of fields have acknowledged that childhood is a construct emerging from modernist perspectives that have not always benefited those who are younger The purposes of the Rethinking Childhood series are to provide critical locations for scholarship that challenges the universalization of childhood and introduces new reconceptualized and critical spaces from which opportunities and possibilities are generated for those who are younger Diverse histories and cultures are considered of major importance as well as issues of critical social justice Developing Media Literacy in Cyberspace Julie D.
