The Reading Report Card, 1985 Focusing on trends in reading achievement during the period from 1970 to 1984 this report draws from national assessments that involved more than 250 000 9 13 and 17 year old students from a wide range of socioeconomic backgrounds The first chapter 1 provides an overview of the report 2 summarizes recent achievements documented by the surveys including improvements in reading made by Black Hispanic and disadvantaged students 3 lists areas in which more improvement is needed and 4 cites other trends revealed by the data The findings include 1 the reading proficiency of males has trailed that of females in all four reading assessments 2 the gaps between the regions of the country have narrowed considerably due primarily to improvements in the Southeastern region except for that region's 9 year olds 3 the influence of home environment is apparent in that students from homes with an abundance of reading materials are substantially better readers than those with few materials available and students whose parents have post high school education read substantially better than those whose parents have not graduated from high school 4 six or more hours of TV viewing per day is consistently and strongly related to lower reading proficiency and 5 students who receive homework and do it tend to read better than students who do not have homework or do not do it The major portion of the second chapter offers brief descriptions of the five levels of proficiency defined by the reading tasks used in the surveys and gives data showing the number of students in each age group who attained each level The third chapter examines the data to discover exactly who has been improving providing figures for Black Hispanic and White students for males and females and for students in different types of communities and in different regions The fourth chapter looks at influences on reading proficiency including parents level of education reading materials in the home the effects of television and homework Appendixes contain descriptions of procedures used in the National Assessment of Educational Progress NAEP reading assessments and extensive tables of data FL Best Practices in Literacy Instruction, Third Edition Linda B. Schirmer, 2010 An innovative resource for literacy teachers Teaching the Struggling Reader takes a novel approach to instruction the reading program is based on the needs of the struggling reader rather than the other way around Most teachers plan their reading lesson and then work in the needs of a struggling reader This book is for teachers looking for a more contemporary and inclusive way to teach reading Starting with assessment the author shows you how to group readers by ability and need rather than by risk factors Finally you will save planning time by learning how to incorporate strategies that you already know into developing your lesson rather than changing your style to accommodate the requirements of a particular reading program Don't Forget to Fly, 1993 Illinois Reading Council Journal, 2016 Educational Psychology Herbert John Klausmeier, 1985
