

Proposed Rule
Implementation Plan
Implementation Plan for Early Learning Programs

In August 2013, the Department of Education issued a final rule implementing the Every Student Succeeds Act. This rule, known as ESSA, provides states and local education agencies with greater flexibility in how they spend federal education funds. This report describes the key changes in the rule and provides recommendations for how states and local education agencies can use the new flexibility to support the implementation of the Every Student Succeeds Act. The report also highlights the key components of the rule and provides recommendations for how states and local education agencies can use the new flexibility to support the implementation of the Every Student Succeeds Act.

- 1. Implementing the rule: The implementation plan must include clear goals and clear and present purposes.
- 2. Using funds wisely for improved outcomes.
  - 3. States must take a comprehensive approach. This approach has a clear focus on improving outcomes for all students, including those who are not currently meeting state standards, and includes the following:
    - 4. Alignment and coherence. The state must be clear about how its goals and objectives connect to the state's educational mission and the state's mission of improving outcomes for all students. This must mean alignment between different components of education, such as assessment. These must mean alignment between the state's mission of improving outcomes for all students and the state's mission of improving outcomes for all students.
    - 5. Differentiation and exception. This approach must focus on how the state applies this strategy when serving the needs of different subgroups of students. The state must differentiate its approach to every subgroup of students with different needs and circumstances.
    - 6. Transparency and accountability. The state must be transparent about its goals and objectives, and must be accountable for achieving them.
    - 7. 7. The ESSA core requirements and characteristics.
      - 8. This is a continuation of the previous rule.
  - 8. States must work to ensure equitable access to high-quality education for all students. This approach also emphasizes ensuring that all students have equal opportunities to succeed in school. This must mean alignment between different groups, and students must be able to succeed, regardless of their background or circumstances.

■ 9. Implementing the rule: The implementation plan must include clear goals and clear and present purposes. This approach has a clear focus on improving outcomes for all students, including those who are not currently meeting state standards, and includes the following:

- 10. Alignment and coherence. The state must be clear about how its goals and objectives connect to the state's educational mission and the state's mission of improving outcomes for all students. This must mean alignment between different components of education, such as assessment. These must mean alignment between the state's mission of improving outcomes for all students and the state's mission of improving outcomes for all students.
