Migration, Remittances and Development Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 2005. This publication presents the current situation with regard to the magnitude of migrants' remittances to their countries of origin. In 2004, remittances exceeded official development aid in several emigration countries; they totalled USD 126 billion according to IMF estimates. Can remittances stimulate productive investments in the countries of origin? Can they spur economic and social development? The impact of remittances on the economic development of sending countries is examined. The book surveys the channels used to collect these funds, the role of banking systems and other financial institutions and the introduction of new technologies and their impact on fund collection, how the funds are transferred and how to reduce the costs. Focus is also placed on the different ways in which migrants themselves participate together with non governmental organisations, host countries and sending countries to open up new avenues for policies on development aid and co development. The direct role that migrants can play at the local level is highlighted. Several countries and regions are illustrated: Southern European countries, Mexico, Turkey, North African and sub Saharan African countries, the Philippines and some Latin American countries.
