Maternal Narratives in Public Contexts

Catherine A. Dobris, Rachel Davidson, Kim White-Mills, 2024-12-15 Maternal Narratives in Public Contexts Shaping Perspectives and Enacting Identities brings together critical research on the construction and enactment of mothering and motherhood in public spheres. The book is divided into two parts in the first part authors examine how prevailing ideals of motherhood influence twenty first century culture by exploring iterations of maternal identity in various media forms from Dr Spock's self help guide to film and small screen entertainment. In the second part the authors investigate how tropes of motherhood manifest and operate in academia the workplace and in political spheres. Ultimately this book explores how maternal identities are both formed and articulated in public discourse arguing that rhetorical influences inform the ways in which we define recognize and enact maternal identities and the sociocultural ramifications that result within communication contexts. Scholars of communication media studies film and television studies cultural studies rhetoric and women's and gender studies will find this book of particular interest.

The Absent Mother in the Cultural Imagination Berit Åström, 2017-07-11 This anthology explores the recurring trope of the dead or absent mother in Western cultural productions. Across historical periods and genres this dialogue has been employed to articulate and debate questions of politics and religion social and cultural change as well as issues of power and authority within the family. The book seeks to investigate the many functions and meanings of the dialogue by covering extensive material from the 1200s to 2014 including hagiography, romances, folktales, plays, novels, children's literature and graphic novels as well as film and television. This is achieved by looking at the discourse both as products of the time and culture that produced the various narratives and as part of an on-going cultural conversation that spans the centuries resulting in an innovative text that will be of great interest to all scholars of gender feminist and media studies.

Mediated Moms Heather L. Hundley, Sara E. Hayden, 2016 Images of good mothers saturate the media yet so too do images of mothers who do not fit this mold. Numerous scholars have addressed bad mothers in the media arguing that these images are a necessary counterpoint that serves to buttress the good mother myth. While mediated images of women who fail to enact good motherhood may promote good mothering as an ideal the essays in Mediated Moms Contemporary Challenges to the Motherhood Myth suggest that this is not all that is occurring in contemporary portrayals of maternity. The authors in this volume explore how images of mothers have expanded beyond the good/bad dichotomy simultaneously and sometimes paradoxically serving to reinforce fracture and/or transcend the ideology of good motherhood.

Interrogating Gendered Pathologies Erin Clark, Michelle F. Eble, 2020-09-01. Interrogating Gendered Pathologies points out and critiques unjust patterns of pathology. Erin A. Frost and Michelle F. Eble assemble a transdisciplinary approach from technologies, rhetorics, philosophies, epistemologies, and biomedical data to consider the effects of biomedicine's gendered norms on people's lives. Using a range of complementary and intersectional theoretical approaches, contributors ask questions about rhetoric's role in healthcare and how it differs depending on patient embodiment and the ways nonnormative bodies are pathologized. These chapters engage common narratives about the ways in which gender in healthcare is secondary and highlights the stories of people who have battled to prioritize their own bodies through extraordinary difficulties. Employing a multiplicity of voices, the book represents a number of different perspectives on what it might look like to return health and medical data to embodied experience to consider the effects of gendered and intersectional biomedical norms on lived realities and to subvert the power of institutions in ways that move us toward biomedical justice. This collection contributes to the burgeoning field of health and medical rhetorics by rhetorically and theoretically intervening in what are often seen as objective and neutral decisions related to the body and to scientific and medical data about bodies. Interrogating Gendered Pathologies will be of interest to feminist scholars in the field of rhetoric and writing studies, specifically those in the rhetorics of health and medicine, as well as scholars of technical communication, feminist studies, gender studies, technoscience studies, and bioethics.
