Electric Vehicle Charging Infrastructures and its Challenges Ashutosh K. Giri, Madhusudan Singh, 2025-02-15 The book presents basic terminologies of charging infrastructures such as types levels and suitable power converters applications Various energy storage technologies such as lithium ion batteries charging strategies and battery management system BMS and battery swapping are discussed in the book In this book some guidelines by the Ministry of Power and Ministry of Housing Government of India are discussed which can help an individual to set up a charging infrastructure at their end Also the novel idea and concepts developed by the researchers academia and practicing engineers working in the domain of the EV charging infrastructures are incorporated The active and reactive power control strategy along with other parameters estimation and control are also included to make this book popular among the readers

Coordinating Electric Vehicle Charging Station Installation Between the Government and Automakers Jiayi Joey Yu, 2020 In cognizant of the fact that accessibility of Electric Vehicle EV charging stations is an important determining factor for EV adoption many governments are contemplating with the ideas of constructing extra EV charging stations directly or offering subsidy to entice automakers to construct more EV charging stations so that a certain EV adoption target is achieved To do so governments need to coordinate with automakers to ensure the total number of charging stations is planned optimally In this paper we examine this coordination problem by considering the case when the government can either build extra EV charging stations directly or offer per station subsidy to entice automakers to build them Also to achieve a certain EV adoption target the government can also offer per unit purchase subsidy to consumers By consider the interactions among the government automakers and consumers our equilibrium analysis yields the following results First we find that either the government or the automakers but not both should build extra EV charging stations in order to achieve a certain EV adoption target Second the entity the government or the automaker that is responsible for constructing charging stations depends on the adoption target and the construction cost of

EV stations Third when the construction cost is high it can be more cost effective for the government to offer per unit purchase subsidy than to construct extra new charging stations directly or indirectly via per station subsidy These results can be served as guidelines for the government when contemplating with the idea of constructing extra EV charging stations directly or providing incentives for automakers to build extra EV stations
