Giles, 1990      Exploring Key Issues in Public-private Partnerships for Highway Development, 1992 This report summarizes a Federal Highway Administration FHWA seminar on key issues in public private partnerships for highway transportation. The seminar provided an opportunity for participants representing a wide range of disciplines and interest groups to discuss a variety of policy issues related to public private partnerships. These issues ranged from ideas for making partnership projects easier to develop to allowing new forms of partnerships to happen. The seminar raised a number of issues about the possibilities and problems of public private partnerships and showed that much remains to be learned about the consequences of applying privatization principals to transportation. The report is organized as follows: Foreward and Opening Remarks of Stephen C. Lockwood Associate Administrator for Policy FHWA Overview Case Studies California and Virginia Panel on Public Sector Perspectives of Public Private Partnerships Panel on Private Sector Perspectives on Public Private Partnerships Reflections on the Seminar Proceedings Appendix A Seminar Participants Appendix B Seminar Agenda and Appendix C Toll Road Provisions of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 ISTEA

Municipal World, 2000      International Business Review, 2000      Partnerships and Networking in Science and Technology for Development Nicholas S. Vonortas, Mongi Hamdi, 2002 Joint ventures between businesses has become an important mechanism to enable companies to access markets and technology around the world. The private sector has increasingly used these co operative arrangements or partnerships in high technology and medium technology industries and when research and development RandD is a focus of the partnership universities and other research institutes may also be involved. This paper considers the relatively slow expansion of formal partnering to the majority of firms in developing countries and argues the need for government strategies and policy intervention. It explores informal partnering through networks as an alternative way for firms in developing countries to acquire competitiveness in this area      Towards Equitable Partnerships Between Corporate and Smallholder Partners, 2003      Tax Court Memorandum Decisions
