Visions Finis Dunaway, 2005 In Natural Visions Finis Dunaway tells the story of how visual imagery such as wilderness photographs New Deal documentary films and Sierra Club coffee table books shaped modern perceptions of the natural world and led to the development of the contemporary conservation movement. By examining the relationship between the camera and environmental politics through detailed studies of key artists and activists Dunaway captures the emotional and spiritual meaning that became associated with the American landscape. Throughout the book he reveals how photographers and filmmakers adapted longstanding traditions in American culture the Puritan jeremiad the romantic sublime and the frontier myth to literally picture nature as a place of grace for the individual and the nation. Beautifully illustrated with photographs by Ansel Adams Eliot Porter and a host of other artists Natural Visions will appeal to a wide range of readers interested in American cultural history the visual arts and environmentalism. In Natural Visions Dunaway takes us on a cultural tour of many of the most politically powerful environmental images of the twentieth century using a richly biographical approach to situate images within their full contexts. Thomas Robertson American Quarterly Well written and at times even poetic Natural Visions is a compelling study with much to offer both general readers and specialists in environmental representation. Daniel J. Philippon Environmental History It is the artists behind the images who interest Dunaway most in particular the way they were carried along by or leaned against the political and cultural winds and how their actions led to the modern environmental movement. He has a fine eye for subtleties and a light touch. Michael Bond New Scientist
