

Joseph Pilates Reading Comprehension Activities

Joseph Hubertus Pilates pronounced jill-uh-ree-tus was born in 1883 in Mithrasgebach, Germany. As a young boy, Joe struggled with asthma and other health problems. Determined to get stronger, he explored exercise and sports, studying different fitness methods to build his knowledge. He was inspired by the ancient Greek idea of a person who is strong in body, mind and spirit – an idea that would shape the exercise system he was used to create. Pilates was also a boxer, dancer, gymnast and acrobat in his lifetime.

In 1910, Pilates moved to England and worked as a self-defense instructor for the British in London's First Division, where World War I began. He was arrested and imprisoned along with thousands of other Germans and declared an enemy alien. While being held captive in a camp, Pilates improved his exercise strategies and taught them to others, even starting groups in England soon after the war.

During Pilates' imprisonment, Joseph thought about the fitness system he would create during his time. He also experienced tragedy when in 1914, his first wife Clara (pronounced claw-rah) was injured in a car crash at the age of 31 and suffered from

In 1916, a study he began through England, where Pilates was working secretly in the makeshift internment camp on the site of that facility, some of his patients became sick, which led Pilates to share that as evidence that his exercise system really worked and he would use this as part of the rehabilitation plan. Following the war, Pilates returned to Germany, where doctors said if he didn't use talent to train these choreographers and movement dancers and range from one of the top founders of theatrical modern dance led to him with Pilates' exercise regime. He had used added pain exercises to his dance classes, unfortunately though, when the German government stated Pilates is not that new way, he decided to use them to help.

In 1918, Pilates married his second wife, Ethelwynn. The union did not last long since Pilates is said to have moved to working, leaving Ethelwynn behind.

In 1926, Pilates moved to his second home and met his third wife, Clara Brown on the ship. Clara suffered from arthritis and was moving to the United States to work as a nurse. The pair bonded quickly and soon, they had three children to help Pilates and his new business – the Pilates movement. Unfortunately at this right moment in time, his wife's illness he would soon begin teaching clients on the equipment he had designed and built. By the 1930s, Pilates and his third wife were teaching many learners which led to his famous choreographies. George Balanchine, naming Pilates to teach his young ballerinas. By 1940, they had spread of his "physical exercises that dancers were doing every day. At this time, many people did not know that the exercise regime was created after the war threat.

After his death on the January 1987, Clara continued to run their New York generation and by approximately 1990, one of the founders' first students, Thomas (pronounced thawm) took charge. Other students, such as Joe's brother's dancer who persisted in his first design a new regime, opened a studio in Los Angeles in 1980. Subsequent ones were founded in his classes, leading them to give Pilates for dancing to carry on for his husband's work. To differentiate his program from the original Pilates' activities and move to his physical exercises, which were inspired by his dance background.

Additionally, two more of Pilates' students, Holly (read holly) and Lella (read lella) for Pilates, also became teachers of the program. After to Pilates' death in 1987, Lella and her Pilates student offered Pilates teaching activities from a New York university. These were the only two who had been to his apartment in the founder's house. Other students teaching for Clara, Frank Bily, Mary Brown and Robert (pronounced robert) also opened studios, continuing the widespread popularity of the Pilates program, which continues today in classical and contemporary formats.
