The Politics of Local Participatory Democracy in Latin America Françoise Montambeault, 2015-10-14 Participatory democracy innovations aimed at bringing citizens back into local governance processes are now at the core of the international democratic development agenda Municipalities around the world have adopted local participatory mechanisms of various types in the last two decades including participatory budgeting the flagship Brazilian program and participatory planning as it is the case in several Mexican municipalities Yet institutionalized participatory mechanisms have had mixed results in practice at the municipal level So why and how does success vary This book sets out to answer that question Defining democratic success as a transformation of state society relationships the author goes beyond the clientelism democracy dichotomy and reveals that four types of state society relationships can be observed in practice clientelism disempowering co option fragmented inclusion and democratic cooperation Using this typology and drawing on the comparative case study of four cities in Mexico and Brazil the book demonstrates that the level of democratic success is best explained by an approach that accounts for institutional design structural conditions of mobilization and the configurations strategies behaviors and perceptions of both state and societal actors Thus institutional change alone does not guarantee democratic success the way these institutional changes are enacted by both political and social actors is even more important as it conditions the potential for an autonomous civil society to emerge and actively engage with the local state in the social construction of an inclusive citizenship

Participatory Budgeting in Brazil Brian Wampler, 2010-11 As Brazil and other countries in Latin America turned away from their authoritarian past and began the transition to democracy in the 1980s and 1990s interest in developing new institutions to bring the benefits of democracy to the citizens in the lower socioeconomic strata intensified and a number of experiments were undertaken Perhaps the one receiving the most attention has been Participatory Budgeting PB first launched in the southern Brazilian city of Porto Alegre in 1989 by a coalition of civil society activists and Workers Party officials PB quickly spread to more than 250 other municipalities in the country and it has since been adopted in more than twenty countries worldwide Most of the scholarly literature has focused on the successful case of Porto Alegre and has neglected to analyze how it fared elsewhere In this first rigorous comparative study of the phenomenon Brian Wampler draws evidence from eight municipalities in Brazil to show the varying degrees of success and failure PB has experienced He identifies why some PB programs have done better than others in achieving the twin goals of ensuring governmental accountability and empowering citizenship rights for the poor residents of these cities in the quest for greater social justice and a well functioning democracy Conducting extensive interviews applying a survey to 650 PB delegates doing detailed analysis of budgets and engaging in participant observation Wampler finds that the three most important factors explaining the variation are the incentives for mayoral administrations to delegate authority the way civil society organizations and citizens respond to the new institutions and the particular rule structure that is used to delegate authority to citizens
