Bihar and Mithila J. Albert

Rorabacher, 2016-09-13 The world has become obsessed with the Western notions of progress development and globalization the latter a form of human and economic homogenization These processes through the aegis of the United Nations are comparatively monitored Those nations deemed to be lagging behind are then provided with foreign aid and developmental assistance For nearly seventy years India has sought its place in this global endeavour yet even today abject poverty and backwardness can be observed in districts in almost every state with the highest concentration of such districts found in the state of Bihar and a cultural enclave known as Mithila Development in India has been elusive because it is difficult to define and because the Western concepts of development and progress have no absolute equivalents within many non Western settings As a consequence development programmes often fail because they are unable to ask the right questions but equally important is the political economy derived from foreign aid For politicians there is no long term benefit to be derived from successful development In general foreign aid only serves to corrupt governments and politicians and in the end does very little for those who need help The struggling states of Bihar and Mithila serve as extreme examples of India's problems Development here has been thwarted by a hereditary landed aristocracy supported by religion casteism custom social stratification tradition and patterns of behaviour that can be traced back millennia In turn all these have been masterfully manipulated by co-opted politicians who have turned politics into a veritable art form as this volume comprehensively

Poverty and Development in China Caizhen Lu, 2013-03-01 China has made huge economic strides in recent decades but poverty is still a major issue on the agenda for rural China Poverty and Development in China analyses how poverty is recognized and measured and how people in poverty are identified literally asking who is poor in China Lu Caizhen s research compares four approaches to poverty assessment China s official poverty identification method the participatory approach to poverty assessment the monetary approach and use of multidimensional poverty indicators Each of these is applied to the same population of households to identify the poor in rural Wuding County Yunnan Province The analysis shows that there is in fact very little overlap of households identified as poor by the various means and that choice of approach does matter in the outcome of who is identified as poor This has implications at the theoretical methodological and policy levels Lu discusses these in detail concluding that at present there is a need to shift away from poverty reduction strategies that narrowly emphasize income generation activities as these are often short term efforts Instead the focus should move towards a broader combination of short term and long term strategies to break poverty s inter linked structural causes
