Richmond, Gëzim Visoka, 2021 Peacebuilding and statebuilding is one of the main approaches for preventing managing and mitigating global insecurities dealing with the humanitarian consequences of civil wars and expanding democracy and neoliberal economic regimes Peace formation is a relatively new concept addressing how local actors attempt to shape or work in parallel to international and national projects The Oxford Handbook of Peacebuilding Statebuilding and Peace Formation serves as an essential guide to this vast intellectual landscape It offers a systematic overview of conceptual foundations political implications and tensions at the global regional and local levels as well as key policies practices examples and discourses underlining all segments of peacebuilding and statebuilding Armed State Building Paul D.

Miller, 2013-08-15 Since 1898 the United States and the United Nations have deployed military force more than three dozen times in attempts to rebuild failed states. Currently there are more state building campaigns in progress than at any time in the past century including Afghanistan, Bosnia, Kosovo, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Haiti, Sudan, Liberia, Cote d'Ivoire and Lebanon, and the number of candidate nations for such campaigns in the future is substantial. Even with a broad definition of success, earlier campaigns failed more than half the time. In this book, Paul D. Miller brings his decade in the U.S. military intelligence community and policy worlds to bear on the question of what causes armed international state building campaigns by liberal powers to succeed or fail. The United States successfully rebuilt the West German and Japanese states after World War II but failed to build a functioning state in South Vietnam. After the Cold War, the United Nations oversaw relatively successful campaigns to restore order, hold elections, and organize post-conflict reconstruction in Mozambique, Namibia, Nicaragua, and elsewhere, but those successes were overshadowed by catastrophes in Angola, Liberia, and Somalia. The recent effort in Iraq and the ongoing one in Afghanistan, where Miller had firsthand military intelligence and policymaking experience, are yielding mixed results despite the high levels of resources dedicated and the long duration of the missions. Miller outlines different types of state failure, analyzes various levels of intervention that liberal states have tried in the state building process, and distinguishes among the various failures and successes those efforts have provoked.

Deliberative Peace Referendums Ron Levy, Ian O'Flynn, Hoi L. Kong, 2021 Referendums are now increasingly common in what can be called conflict societies as a way of using the sovereign authority of the people to bring about new constitutional settlements. Cyprus, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Eritrea, Guatemala, Iraq, Kenya, Kosovo, Montenegro, New Caledonia, Northern Ireland, Papua New Guinea, Somalia, South Sudan, Tanzania, and Timor-Leste are just some examples of countries where referendums have or will soon be held on these points. This book investigates the practice of referendums as a method of peacebuilding in conflict societies, their rationales, their successes, and their failures, ultimately arguing that the referendum's utility for conflict management in large part depends on its design, including how such design incorporates cautionary lessons from past trials.

Conflict and Peacemaking in Multiethnic Societies Center for the Study of Foreign Affairs (U.S.), 1990

From Intra-state War to Democratic Peace in Weak States Thomas Ohlson, Mimmi Söderberg, 2002

Peacemaking by Democracies Norrin M. Ripsman, 2002 Challenging this assumption, Peacemaking by Democracies breaks down the category of democracy to argue that differences in structural autonomy among democratic states have a lot to do with how foreign security policies are chosen and international negotiations are carried out. The more structural autonomy the foreign security policy executive possesses, the greater the policy independence from public and legislative opinion; it is able to achieve.

Ethnic Conflict: Settlement of ethnic conflict Rajat Ganguly, 2009 Ethnic conflicts in various scales and forms are a feature of the post Cold War international landscape from which no region of the world is completely free In terms of impact it has been equally devastating for both developed and developing states Therefore there has never been a more appropriate time to study ethnic conflict in all its dimensions This four volume collection examines the many facets of ethnic conflict including their causes consequences and resolution Volume I Ethnic Identity includes articles dealing with the various interpretations and meanings of ethnicity and the debate surrounding the formation persistence and salience of ethnic identity Volume II Causes of Ethnic Conflict focuses on causal explanations of ethnic conflict Volume III The Consequences of Ethnic Conflict then focuses on the consequences or impacts of ethnic conflict Finally Volume IV The Settlement of Ethnic Conflict discusses articles that cover the settlement of ethnic conflict

Prospects for Political Stability in a Democratic Iraq Karen Kristina Petersen, Stephen R. Saunders, 2009 Clusters composed of a democratic state surrounded by autocratic states may be particularly conflict prone If so were Iraq to become an established democracy in the midst of mostly nondemocratic contiguous neighbors we may expect increased conflict within the cluster The current study using COW and Polity data analyzes 142 clusters over an extended period and finds support for the proposition that heterogeneous clusters with autocracies surrounding a democracy tend to be conflictual

Conflict Areas in the Balkans Pinar Yürür, Arda Özkan, 2020-10-27 The situation in the Balkans such as the solution to the status of Kosovo is currently the largest international political problem in Europe with the potential to burst into a world crisis regarding the Eastern Western relations On the other hand a successful solution to the problem in the Balkans could serve as a model for solving the Muslim Christian tensions elsewhere in the world It is the intention of this book to contribute proposals for solutions to the problems of Balkans The starting principle for the solutions to be effective is that they should come in a natural way from the people below and should not be enforced by the political elites from above Based on self determination of nations as a starting principle they should encourage intra regional cooperation among the regional entities economic cultural sport as a basis for political social understanding and cooperation secondly accelerate their economic political and social development and thirdly as a final step enable the inclusion of the Balkan countries into the European Union

Deliberative Democracy and Divided Societies Ian O'Flynn, 2006 In a world where the impact of internal conflicts is spreading ever wider there is a real need to rethink how democratic ideals and institutions can best be implemented This book responds to this challenge by showing that deliberative democracy has crucial but largely untapped normative implications for societies deeply divided along ethnic lines Its central claim is that deliberative norms and procedures can enable the citizens of such societies to build and sustain a stronger sense of common national identity More specifically it argues that the deliberative requirements of reciprocity and publicity can enable citizens and representatives to strike an appropriate balance between the need to recognise competing ethnic identities and the need to develop a common civic identity centred on the institutions of the state. Although the book is primarily normative it supports its claims with a broad range of empirical examples drawn from cases such as Bosnia and Herzegovina, Lebanon, Macedonia, Northern Ireland and South Africa. It also considers the normative implications of deliberative democracy for questions of institutional design. It argues that power sharing institutions should be conceived in a way that allows citizens as much freedom as possible to shape their own relation to the polity. Crucially, this freedom can enable them to reconstruct their relationship to each other and to the state in ways that ultimately strengthen and sustain the transition from ethnic conflict to democracy. Journal of Peace Research, 2002 Journal of Theoretical Politics, 2001

Challenges to Peacebuilding Edward Newman, Oliver P. Richmond, 2006. Many ceasefires and peace agreements in civil conflict are initially unsuccessful. Whilst some give way to renewed and often escalating violence, others have become interminably protracted, leading to lengthy negotiations in which concessions are rare. Given the huge material and human costs of a failed peace process, the international community has a strong interest in helping these processes succeed and addressing threats to their implementation. This publication focuses on the groups and tactics referred to as spoilers that actively seek to obstruct or undermine conflict settlement through a variety of means, including terrorism and violence. Drawing upon experience from Northern Ireland, the Basque region, Bosnia, Colombia, Israel, Palestine, Cyprus, the Caucasus and Kashmir, it explores the concept of spoiling and spoiling behaviours from a broad range of interests involved, including rebel groups and insurgents, diasporas and governments. It considers how this can be addressed and demonstrates how ill conceived or imposed peace processes can themselves contribute to the problem. Ethnic Minority Conflicts and Violence in Tafawa-Balewa Area of Bauchi State Saleh Dauda, 1999 European Journal of Political Research, 1998

Political Settlements in Divided Societies Christalla Yakinthou, 2009-07-23. The problem of how political settlements are to be adopted in divided or post conflict societies is one which is receiving growing attention as the international community increasingly views protracted intra state conflicts as carrying trans national consequences. It is not only finding the most appropriate kind of political settlement that is so problematic, but also how to reach the point where those proposals are adopted. Cyprus provides an illuminating case study of these problems. The object of many years of scrutiny and multiple sustained efforts at resolution of its division means that Cyprus can reveal a good deal about what impedes and what assists progress towards a settlement. The experiences of Cyprus therefore can offer lessons to both practitioners working on political solutions for divided and post conflict societies and to academics and others seeking to understand how conflicts become intractable, where the primary impediments lie to successful constitutional architecture and how those impediments can be overcome. The book offers answers for why political leaders in Cyprus have been so unwilling to adopt a power sharing solution. In so doing it offers new material for the wider debate regarding constitutional design and adoption of peace plans in divided societies on the politics of institutionalising peace.
