Peace Stabilizing An Elusive Grace:

Comfort One Another Abraham Smith, 1995-01-01 This unique study considers the exegetical and hermeneutical possibilities of analyzing the entire letter of 1 Thessalonians as a letter of consolation Abraham Smith maintains that Paul wrote 1 Thessalonians with a full knowledge of the tradition of Greco Roman letters of consolation and chose this genre to sustain members of the Thessalonian church Smith explicates the social and literary conventions of this tradition and fully discloses why this particular rhetoric of care was employed Showing how Paul's letter of consolation was understood in Paul's world and by subsequent generations Smith demonstrates the usefulness of Paul's rhetoric of comfort for modern society

The Blackwell Companion to the Bible in English Literature Rebecca Lemon, Emma Mason, Jonathan Roberts, Christopher Rowland, 2010-03-25 This Companion explores the Bible's role and influence on individual writers whilst tracing the key developments of Biblical themes and literary theory through the ages An ambitious overview of the Bible's impact on English literature as arguably the most powerful work of literature in history from the medieval period through to the twentieth century Includes introductory sections to each period giving background information about the Bible as a source text in English literature and placing writers in their historical context Draws on examples from medieval early modern eighteenth century and Romantic Victorian and Modernist literature Includes many secular or anti clerical writers alongside their Christian contemporaries revealing how the Bible's text shifts and changes in the writing of each author who reads and studies it
