The small dramas that happen in public places are like mini stories that can entertain make us think or touch a certain emotion They are played out without a producer or editor but maybe with a writer taking notes These twenty or so stories are perhaps those notes The Memoir Man and Others in Public Places is a collection of both short stories and poems that range from a camouflaged homeless person pushing a grocery cart carrying a typewriter to a man walking on Fifth Avenue with a television on his head The main characters are either slightly mentally or emotionally challenged and happen to be out in public Bits and pieces of lives such as these are played out with an involved narrator or without A man sits at a table in a library peeling an egg while being watched by a woman quietly and obsessively reviewing highlights of her ancestor's life A man on a train is peeling an egg and wondering what to do with the tiny pieces of shells lodged in the creases of his hands A woman watches and judges a woman filling her pockets with napkins at a Barnes and Noble caf In a museum lobby a woman notices a couple trying to check their baby along with their coats Both long and short stories capture obsession loneliness nosiness and brief moments of guilt or compassion He's back He looks at the kid holding his pen He looks pained He walks to the window He can't sit down He rubs his eyes and pushes his gray hair to a stick out straight up position Then smooths it down Rubs his head again I think Maybe he has a publisher Maybe he is a retired professor on a mission for the Center for Advanced Learning or the Fellowship of Spanish Believers or the Salvation Army Karl Marx wrote Das Kapital in the British Museum The man could be another Karl Marx and I am watching him change the course of history It's a shame they don't supply him with an office I think too If that kid speaks to him he will cry

Honey Blood Kirsty Everett, 2021-02-01 I thought if I was going to die I should write some things down Kirsty Everett was going to be an Olympic gymnast But as she made plans to win gold life as it does laughed at the goal she'd set Aged nine she was diagnosed with leukaemia and spent the next two and a half years in treatment and attending the funerals of children she met in the cancer ward At the age of sixteen Kirsty's cancer returned Faced with a devastating prognosis she threw herself into as much as she could friends school drama sport even a life writing course with Patti Miller As she said I thought if I was going to die I should write some things down Against the odds Kirsty survived She never achieved gold at the Olympics but she learned a lot about people attitudes and resilience This is a book about growing up different when you want to be the same sparking hostility where there should be support and how love can be tested to its utmost It's wise and unflinching and hopeful and you won't feel the same after reading it PRAISE Told by a writer who's a real natural Steven Carroll Sydney Morning Herald An incredible book I haven't been able to stop thinking about Kirsty's journey Chyka Keebaugh Everett is a born writer her compelling story shot through with the extraordinary sensitivities of childhood B P magazine Honey Blood is one of the most exuberant life affirming memoirs I have ever read The fact that it is about the uncompromising reality of childhood cancer makes it all the more extraordinary Read it and be utterly bowled over Kirsty Everett's astonishing courage honesty and cheeky humour Patti Miller author If the Olympic Games are designed around people achieving their personal best commitment courage determination and reaching their goals Kirsty has been to the equivalent of two Olympics Wayne Staunton managing director Sold Out events management Do not be afraid of this book The big C in it is not cancer it's Courage The courage to deal with pain loss fear and the shattering of a young girl's big dreams Instead of tiptoeing around the tough stuff and leaving the most difficult bits out Kirsty Everett dives right in taking the reader into her world bravely honestly with raw humour and grit We get up close to her tight knit family boisterous friends tender first loves doctors both brusque and kind and rude strangers Death hovers on every page but life's vitality and Kirsty's defiant spirit shove it aside This refreshingly straight talking account of adolescent leukaemia goes beyond pain to a fuller wiser deeper understanding of what really matters when everything you hope for hangs by a thread It offers the best medicine for anyone who has ever faced relentless physical and mental odds and obstacles that create seemingly insurmountable roadblocks as tests of character It may not be a cure but it is one mighty transfusion of the powerful drugs that make us human and help us survive hope compassion and love Caroline Baum author This is a coming of age story that will shock and inspire you Told with searing honesty Honey Blood tells the close up story of growing up while everything is falling down In her compassionate funny and warm way Kirsty Everett tells her story that will inspire others to tell and live through their stories A wonderful and truthful insight into how to survive and thrive against the odds Michael Anderson Professor of Creativity and Arts Education University of Sydney Gay & Lesbian Biography Michael J.
