Gardner,2016-06-26 Excerpt from Paint Technology and Tests A few years ago the producer and consumer of paints possessed comparatively little knowledge of the relative durability of various pigments and oils There existed in some cases a prejudice for a few standard products that often held the user in bondage discouraging investigation and exciting suspicion whenever discoveries were made that brought forth new materials Such conditions indicated to the more progressive the need of positive information regarding the value of various painting materials and the advisability of having the questions at issue determined in a practical manner The desire that such work should be instituted resulted in the creation of a Scientific Section the Scope of which was to make investigations to determine the relative merits of different types of paint and to enlighten the industry on various technical problems Paint exposure tests of an extensive nature were started in various sections of the country where climatic conditions vary This field work was supplemented in the laboratory by a series of important researches into the properties of pigments oils and other raw products entering into the manufacture of protective coatings The results of the work were published in bulletin form and given wide distribution The demand for these bulletins early exhausted the original impress and a general summary therefore forms a part of this volume About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
