

Medication Management at Different Senior Living Options

Assisted Living Communities

These communities provide comprehensive medication management services, including regular administration and monitoring. They have trained staff who ensure medications are taken correctly and safely.

Specifically designed for individuals with dementia or Alzheimer's disease, memory care communities offer specialized medication management tailored to the unique needs of their residents.

Nursing Homes

Nursing homes provide the highest level of medical care outside of a hospital, including extensive medication management. They have skilled nursing staff available around the clock to administer medications and monitor residents.

These communities do not perform medication management and are not licensed to do so. However, they may coordinate with home healthcare services to provide additional support.
