My Life with Alexander Archipenko Frances Archipenko Gray, 2014 Modernist sculptor Alexander Archipenko born 1887 Kiev died 1964 New York City has been called the Picasso of Sculpture for the Cubist elements he introduced to create a new way of looking at the human figure This deeply personal biography written by his artist wife during his last eight years casts a new light on this extremely productive innovative but little known period of his career Despite an age difference of nearly fifty years Frances Gray a student at his school in Woodstock New York formed a deep and lasting companionship with Archipenko leading to marriage in 1957 Gray paints a rounded picture of a complex and fascinating personality part artist part businessman part spiritual seeker When the art world turned away from modernism toward Abstract Expressionism Archipenko's work fell from critical favour Archipenko was increasingly plagued by problems with forgeries and fraudulent authentications of his work and the book casts a new light on his resulting volatile relationships with many dealers museums and collectors

Archaism, Modernism, and the Art of Paul Manship Susan Rather, 2014-11-06 Archaism an international artistic phenomenon from early in the twentieth century through the 1930s receives its first sustained analysis in this book The distinctive formal and technical conventions of archaic art especially Greek art particularly affected sculptors some frankly modernist others staunchly conservative and a few who like American Paul Manship negotiated the distance between tradition and modernity Susan Rather considers the theory practice and criticism of early twentieth century sculpture in order to reveal the changing meaning and significance of the archaic in the modern world To this end and against the background of Manship's career she explores such topics as the archaeological resources for archaism the classification of the non Western art of India as archaic the interest of sculptors in modern dance

Isadora Duncan and Ruth St Denis and the changing critical perception of archaism Rather rejects the prevailing conception of archaism as a sterile and superficial academic style to argue its initial importance as a modernist mode of expression The early practitioners of archaism including Aristide Maillol Andr Derain and Constantin Brancusi renounced the rhetorical excess overrefined naturalism and indirect techniques of late nineteenth century sculpture in favor of nonnarrative stylized and directly carved works for which archaic Greek art offered an important example Their position found implicit support in the contemporaneous theoretical writings of Emmanuel Lwy Wilhelm Worringer and Adolf von Hildebrand The perceived relationship between archaic art and tradition ultimately compromised the modernist authority of archaism and made possible its absorption by academic and reactionary forces during the 1910s By the 1920s Paul Manship was identified with archaism which had become an important element in the aesthetic of public sculpture of both democratic and totalitarian societies Sculptors often employed archaizing stylizations as ends in themselves and with the intent of evoking the foundations of a classical art diminished in potency by its ubiquity and obsolescence Such stylistic archaism was not an empty formal exercise but an urgent affirmation of traditional values under siege Concurrently archaism entered the mainstream of fashionable modernity as an ingredient in the popular and commercial style known as Art Deco Both developments fueled the condemnation of archaism and of Manship its most visible exemplar by the avant garde Rather s exploration of the critical debate over archaism finally illuminates the uncertain relationship to modernism on the part of many critics and highlights the problematic positions of sculpture in the modernist discourse
