Department for Education Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2013-04-23 Academies are funded directly by central government directly accountable to the Department for Education and outside local authority control They have greater financial freedoms than maintained schools By September 2012 the number of open academies had increased tenfold from 203 to 2 309 Academies are the Department s chosen vehicle for school reform but increasing schools autonomy and removing them from local authority control gives the Department responsibility for ensuring value for money The Department has incurred significant costs from the complex and inefficient system it has used for funding the Academies Programme and its oversight of academies has had to play catch up with the rapid growth in academy numbers In the two years from April 2010 to March

2012 the Department spent 8.3 billion on Academies 1 billion of this was an additional cost to the Department not originally budgeted for this purpose some of which was not recovered from local authorities The Department must improve the efficiency of its funding mechanisms and stop the growth in other costs Furthermore the Department has yet to establish effective school level financial accountability for academies operating within chains What will determine whether the Department ultimately achieves value for money is academies impact on educational performance relative to the investment from the taxpayer If the Department is to be held properly to account for its spending on academies it must insist that every Academy Trust provides it with data showing school level expenditure including per pupil costs and with a level of detail comparable to that available for maintained schools The School Executive ,1959 Popular Mechanics ,1967-11
