Medication Management In Care Of Older People:

Medication Management in Care of Older People Maggi Banning, 2008-04-15 Medication Management in Care of Older People is an accessible introduction to medication management and its role in the management of older people and their medicines. It addresses key issues in medication management, evaluates professional roles and clinical practice initiatives, and explores healthcare policy and prescribing initiatives. This text explores the biology and neurobiology of ageing, pathological conditions such as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's disease, medication errors, issues of concordance, long-term conditions, and the older person. The principles of applied pharmacology and its relationship to older people. Medication Management in Care of Older People will be of interest to health care professionals who either have an interest in medication management and older people or who are qualified independent or supplementary prescribers and will enable them to comprehend the principles of applied pharmacology and medication management to enable them to use this knowledge in their daily practice. Illustrates the current issues, concerns, and approaches used to manage older people and their medicines. Builds on pertinent current policy and research initiatives, including the NSF for Older People and Building a Safer NHS for Patients, the role of medication safety. Each chapter features case studies, learning outcomes, and implications for practice. I found this book to be interesting and highly relevant to OT practice. I would recommend this book as a learning resource to inform review and support clinical therapy practice. Occupational Therapists could well appreciate many of the contributory factors relating to medication problems with Older People; using this resource could raise own standards but also assist with reducing the negative impacts of medication issues on older people. Sarah Montgomery, A.E. Occupational Therapist and Communications Officer, COT Specialist Section, Older People, London, UK.

Medication Management in Older Adults Susan Koch, F. Michael Gloth, Rhonda Nay, 2010-08-14 Medication use is the predominant form of health intervention in our society. And as we age, the likelihood of medication use increases dramatically, with more than 80 percent of those over age 65 using one or more medications. Along with that, the potential for medication errors also increases. Indeed, adverse drug reactions (ADRs) and adverse drug events (ADEs) are a significant problem in older adults. Written in a practical format by contributors from Australia and the United States, Medication Management in Older Adults: A Concise Guide for Clinicians presents the available evidence on research interventions designed to reduce the incidence of medication errors in older adults, with a focus on acute, subacute, and residential long-term care settings. Because medication errors can occur at all stages in the medication process, from prescription by physicians to delivery of medication to the patient by nurses, and in any site in the health system, it is essential that interventions be targeted at all aspects of medication delivery. Chapters cover the principles of medical ethics in relation to medication management, common medication errors in the acute care sector, medication management in long-term care settings, nutrition and medications, the outcomes of a systematic review, dose form alterations, Electronic Health Records (EHR), Computerized Order Entry (COE), Beers criteria, and pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics.
