Past, Present, or Future?

For nearly two millennia, Christians and philosophers have debated the meaning and timing of the millennium, the future of planet earth, and even the reason. Most popular commentators available today recognize the three major views in mainstream Christianity (Pre-Millennialism, Post-Millennialism, & Amillennialism). But nearly all of them ignore some of the most basic arguments for a first-century fulfillment of the millennium. But why is this? Why has evangelical Christianity ignored or missed these basic arguments?

While most Christians today focus on future events, and a future millennium happens when Jesus returns, Joseph takes us back to our Christian roots in the first century, and he attempts to show the reader why this important topic is not dealing with our future, but our past.

In this book, author Joseph Vincent delves into what the early church taught about this mysterious doctrine, and he explores some of the major arguments for the "Present/Christians" view (First-Century Fulfillment). Joseph isn't concerned so much with debating the alternative views, but he does argue them briefly. His primary objective is to present a Biblical defense using logical, sensible, well thought-out auxiliary arguments to provide the reader with a solid foundation for making a case for the present view of Biblical fulfillment concerning the millennium.

Join Joseph in his journey and explore this topic in ways that have never before been done in a single volume like this. You'll walk away with a completely new perspective.
