What is an Ally? What is Allyship? Why should we teach it in primary schools? Allyship is many things. It is empathy, community action, positivity, inclusion, anti-racism, aspiration, and more. Allyship is learning about diversity and difference and making a conscious choice to support those who are marginalised. This learning has always mattered in primary schools. In this book, educator Frances Akinde outlines what allyship is and why it matters more than ever in primary schools today. Through practical guidance and support, Frances empowers teachers to take positive action right now. Her practical support includes lesson ideas, learning activities, and key resources. Through allyship, children can learn to be agents of positive change in their schools and communities. This book enables teachers to bring this learning to the classroom.

Mental Health Matters Paula Nagel, 2016-09-08. Teachers have a responsibility to support the mental health of children in their care. Current statistics show a significant rise in mental health difficulties in children and young people and new legislation urges schools to consider whether continuing disruptive behaviour might be the result of an unmet need. However, this is not an area that is universally addressed in teacher training programmes or books. Using real life case studies, this book supports all teachers and school staff in understanding and identifying the early signs of mental health difficulties and explains how to bring about appropriate early interventions. The Wiley Blackwell Handbook of Bullying Peter K.

Smith, James O'Higgins Norman, 2021-08-10. Explore the latest research and theory on bullying with this international reference from leading voices in the field.
