Furniture-Makers and Consumers in England, 1754-1851 Akiko Shimbo,2016-04-15 Covering the period from the publication of Thomas Chippendale's The Gentleman and Cabinet Makers Director 1754 to the Great Exhibition 1851 this book analyses the relationships between producer retailers and consumers of furniture and interior design and explores what effect dialogues surrounding these transactions had on the standardisation of furniture production during this period. This was an era before mass production when domestic furniture was made both to order and from standard patterns and negotiations between producers and consumers formed a crucial part of the design and production process. This study narrows in on three main areas of this process the role of pattern books and their readers the construction of taste and style through negotiation and daily interactions through showrooms and other services to reveal the complexities of English material culture in a period of industrialisation

Male Professionals in Nineteenth Century Britain Laurence Brockliss,Harry Smith,2024-06-25 Male Professionals in Nineteenth Century Britain is the first statistically based social cultural and familial history of a fast growing and socially prominent section of the Victorian propertied classes. It is built around a representative cohort of 750 men who were recorded in the 1851 census as practising a profession in eight British provincial towns with distinctive economic and social profiles Brighton Bristol Dundee Greenock Leeds Merthyr Tydfil Winchester and the twin county town of Northumberland Alnwick Morpeth. The book provides a collective account of the cohort's lives and the lives of their families across four generations starting with their parents and ending with their grandchildren. It touches on the history of 16 000 individuals. The book aims to throw light on the extent to which nineteenth century professionals had a distinctive socio cultural profile as sociologists and some historians have claimed or were largely indistinguishable from other members of propertied society as most historians today assume without further investigation. In exploring this question particular attention is paid to the cohort families wealth household size education occupational history geographical mobility and broader involvement in society measured by their members choice of marriage partner their kinship and friendship circles their political allegiance and their leisure activities. The book demonstrates that male professionals in the Victorian era were far from being a homogenous group but were divided in many ways. The most important was wealth which played a key role in the social and occupational fortunes of their descendants. These divisions largely explain why some professionals and some individual professions were much more likely to display endogenous characteristics than others. The book also demonstrates that even the most successful professional families got poorer over time and reveals how easily in the age of industrialisation branches of families and sometimes complete families could drop out of the elite

Women and museums 1850-1914 Kate Hill,2016-07-01 This book recovers the significant contribution made by women to museums not just in obvious roles such as workers but also as donors visitors volunteers and patrons. It suggests that women persistently acted to domesticate the museum by importing domestic objects and domestic regimes of value as well as by making museums more welcoming to children and even by stressing the importance of housekeeping at the museum. At the same time women sought masculine careers in science and curatorship but found such aspirations hard to achieve. Their contribution tended to be kept within clear feminised areas. The book will be of interest to those working on gender culture or museums in the period. It sheds new light on women's material culture and material strategies education and professional careers and leisure practices. It will form an important historical context for those working in contemporary museum studies.

Living with Strangers Chiara Briganti, Kathy Mezei, 2020-06-03. Living with Strangers examines the history and cultural representation of bed sitting rooms and boarding houses in England from the early twentieth century to the present. Providing a historical overview the authors explore how these alternative domestic spaces came to provide shelter for a diverse demographic of working women and men, retired army officers, gay people, students, bohemians, writers, artists, performers, migrants and asylum seekers, as well as shady figures and criminals. Drawing on historical records, case studies and examples from literature, art and film, the book examines how the prevalence and significance of bedsits and boarding houses in novels, plays, detective stories, Ealing comedies and contemporary fiction and film produced its own genre of narrative. The nine chapters are written by an international range of established and emerging scholars in the fields of literary studies, art and film history, political theory, queer studies and cultural studies. A lively, highly original study, Living with Strangers makes a significant contribution to the cross-disciplinary field of home studies and provides insight into a crucial aspect of British cultural history. It is essential reading for students and researchers in anthropology, history, literary studies, sociology, gender and sexuality studies, film studies and cultural studies.

Nanny Knows Best Katherine Holden, 2013-09-01. Not quite part of the family and more than just an employee, idealised and demonised, the nanny has always had a difficult role in family life. Any discussion of nannies arouses strong emotions in those who have employed them and reveals a sometimes shocking range of experiences both for the nannies and for the children they looked after. Winston Churchill as a child rarely saw his mother and idolized his nanny, paying for fresh flowers to be maintained on her grave and keeping her portrait by his bedside till he died. A nanny to the one of the principal landowning families in Dorset nearly starved their treasured heir to death while a Suffolk nanny found parting from one of her charges so traumatic that she suffered a mental breakdown. This book weaves personal stories viewed through the eyes of nannies, mothers and children into a fascinating cultural history of the iconic British nanny. Katherine Holden goes beyond the myths to discover where our tradition of employing nannies comes from and to explore the ways in which it has and has not changed over the past century. From the Norland Nannies method and the magical Mary Poppins to the terrifying breach of trust in films The Nanny and The Hand that Rocks the Cradle to today's child tamer, Supernanny, our culture has alternately welcomed and rejected this approach to child care. The tales told in this history reach to the heart of the nanny dilemma that parents still struggle with today.

Globalising Housework Laura Humphreys, 2021-04-26. This book shows how international influences profoundly shaped the English home of Victorian and Edwardian London homes which in turn influenced Britain's and Britons' place on the world stage. The period between 1850 and 1914 was one of fundamental global change when London homes were subject to new expanding influences that shaped how residents cleaned, ate, and cared for family. It was also the golden age of domesticity when the making and maintaining of home expressed people's experience of society, class, race, and politics. Focusing on the everyday toil of housework, the chapters in this volume show the English home as profoundly global, a conglomeration of people, technology, and things. It examines a broad spectrum of sources from patents to ice cream makers and explores domestic histories through original readings and critiques of printed sources, material culture, and visual ephemera.

Domestic Cultures Joanne Hollows, 2008-03 This is an extremely useful text for undergraduate students studying domestic cultures as a cultural, social, or historical phenomenon. It is well organised and easy to follow and can be dipped into with ease. Popular Narrative Media Although home is central to most people's experience of everyday life, the meaning of home is often taken for granted. In this accessible and student friendly introduction to domestic cultures, Joanne Hollows surveys current thinking and approaches to demonstrate why home is so central to our lives. Domestic Cultures examines which meanings and values have been associated with home and demonstrates how these have been transformed and reworked in different historical contexts. The book shows that while certain meanings of domestic culture are frequently produced for us, these can be negotiated and resisted through everyday home making practices. She demonstrates how elements of domesticity have been dislocated and mobilized within public life. This wide ranging text challenges a range of ideas about domestic culture. It examines how the meanings of domestic life are produced across a range of discourses and practices from architecture lifestyle media and advertising to home decoration cooking and watching television The book demonstrates how domestic cultures are not only linked to particular ideas about gendered identities but how they are also differentiated by class race and sexuality Domestic Cultures is a key introductory text for media sociology and cultural studies students Resources in Vocational Education ,1979 MLA International Bibliography of Books and Articles on the Modern Languages and Literatures Modern Language Association of America,1987 Vols for 1969 include ACTFL annual bibliography of books and articles on pedagogy in foreign languages 1969
