Dyes in History and Archaeology 33/34 Jo Kirby, 2021-04-28 The 19th and early 20th centuries were a time of change in the technology of dyes and dyeing brilliantly colored synthetic dyes came onto the market and were welcomed into the world of fashionable clothing Natural dyes still had a part to play however locally available dyes could make a significant contribution to the revival or development of the economy of a region such as the Scottish Highlands during the First World War The dye extracted from a plant growing in one region may differ slightly from that found in a closely related species growing in another the Japanese and Chinese species of Phellodendron Amur cork tree and related plants are a good example Analysis of the dyes used for a fabric may thus suggest the region in which it was dyed Trade records can provide additional useful evidence as shown by a comparison of dyed textiles from the Ryukyu Kingdom Okinawa and neighboring islands and Indonesia The use of non invasive spectrometric methods to examine dyes and pigments has increased considerably notably portable methods that can be taken to the object This is essential in the case of manuscripts that cannot be moved from the library holding them such as the Aztec Codex Borbonicus The application of multispectral imaging techniques to textile dyes is relatively recent and if high performance liquid chromatography can also be carried out as in the case of the Italian polychrome laces described in this book valuable and informative results can be achieved These are some of the topics presented at the 33rd and 34th meetings of Dyes in History and Archaeology held in Glasgow 2014 and Thessaloniki 2015 other analytical methods historical Chinese dyeing practices and the always fascinating topic of indigo may also be found in this book The Art of Fabric Dyeing Zoey Foster, Unlock the vibrant world of fabric dyeing with this comprehensive guide that empowers you to create stunning textiles and bring your creative vision to life Dive into the fundamentals of fabric dyeing understanding the properties of various fabrics and the chemistry behind different dye types Master essential dyeing techniques from immersion and pad batch to continuous and garment dyeing exploring both traditional and innovative methods Unleash your creativity with a range of surface dyeing techniques including tie dye batik shibori and dip dyeing Learn the art of natural dyeing harnessing the power of plants to achieve eco friendly earthy hues Experiment with advanced dyeing techniques to achieve unique and breathtaking effects Delve into color theory for dyeing understanding how to create harmonious color combinations and achieve desired results Discover how dyeing can transform textiles for fashion home decor costumes and beyond This practical and inspirational guide provides everything you need to master the art of fabric dyeing inspiring you to create your own vibrant and captivating textile masterpieces The Art and Science of Natural Dyes Joy Boutrup, Catharine Ellis, 2018-10-28 This long awaited guide serves as a tool to explain the general principles of natural dyeing and to help dyers to become more accomplished at their craft through an increased understanding of the process Photos of more than 450 samples demonstrate the results of actual dye tests and detailed information covers every aspect of natural dyeing including theory fibers mordants dyes printing organic indigo vats finishing and the evaluation of dye fastness Special techniques of printing and discharging indigo are featured as well The book is intended for dyers and printers who wish to more completely understand the why and the how while ensuring safe and sustainable practices Written by a textile engineer and chemist Boutrup and a textile artist and practitioner Ellis its detailed and tested recipes for every process including charts and comparisons make it the ideal resource for dyers with all levels of experience Dyeing for Fibres and Fabrics Janet De Boer, 1984
