Recommending publication in journals - particularly those that publish a general philosophy, literary, or philosophical text - can have the effect of legitimizing, and thus, supporting, certain kinds of writers. These writers represent the "middle" but not the "left" or "right" of the spectrum of opposition to official institutions and represent a middle ground that is relatively free from the left or right of the spectrum.

Chen and I have found no examples of other genera with such a high degree of systematic congruence, so this seems like an interesting case and deserves investigation in greater depth in the future.

Smart Working Anne Marie McEwan, 2016-04-01 It is more possible than ever to influence and shape our working environments, our experience of work and each other. Business leaders who set the conditions and create engaging, meaningful work through organisational design and use of the knowledge and creative potential of their workforces are engaging in smart working. In Smart Working Creating the Next Wave Anne Marie McEwan explains how smart working is more than just flexible and mobile working. It is about flexibility and autonomy, how people work not just where and when. She argues that systems, working environments and governance are more likely to lead to effective performance if they maximise self-determination and choice. She describes how collaborative communication technologies create possibilities for stimulating and harnessing collective intelligence within and beyond organisational boundaries. In short, smart working is an outcome of designing organisational systems that are good both for business and people. McEwan warns that the tendency to talk about new management paradigms risks overlooking insights derived from years of academic research and particularly from lessons learned from process innovation methodology. This rigorously researched but intensely practical book examines current workplace trends relating to people, technology, place and space. It reviews what we already know about effective management and high performance work methods and shows how those insights can be used to advantage in contemporary workscapes. It will help those with responsibilities for the strategic direction of their organizations. Learning and development and HR professionals will understand how to interpret these insights for their own business.

Vietnamese Health Care System in Change Kerstin Priwitzer, 2003-08-01 Within the last twenty years a large scale bottom up privatization has taken place in Vietnam changing and dismantling the public health care system. This process has led to severe tensions inherent in the transitional society of Vietnam between equity and access to health care support especially for the poor elderly migrants and ethnic minorities on the one hand and its efficiency on the other hand. The book traces the reform efforts to modernize the health care system by the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Vietnamese government. The author bases her findings on little known primary literature and interviews with key stakeholders of the policy network involved in the reform of the health care system thereby painting an authentic atmospheric picture of the profound changes in the health care system in Vietnam.

Development Outreach, 2004 Growing Together, 2012 The Asia Pacific region's rapid growth since the 1950s had been supported by a favourable external economic environment and opportunities arising from globalization. This however has changed dramatically in the aftermath of the global financial crisis of 2008-2009. In the new global environment sustaining the region's growth and realizing the Asia Pacific century critically depends on its ability to harness the potential of regional economic integration. In light of the many complementarities arising from its diversity the region a late starter in regionalism has many underexploited opportunities for mutually beneficial regional integration. Regional economic integration can also assist in making regional development more balanced with the lagging economies receiving a boost through stronger connectivity and integration with economic growth poles such as China and India. Besides fostering peace such cooperation could also help the region address shared vulnerabilities and risks and exercise its influence in global economic governance in a way commensurate to its rising economic weight. To harness the potential of regional economic integration the study recommends a four pronged scheme with a long term vision of
