Terence Riley, Barry Bergdoll, 2002-07-02 This in depth look at Mies van der Rohe's early career is the first to examine the architect's work in Europe in terms of specific historical and cultural context rather than the more abstract and formal arguments of the International Style. While earlier studies have described a fundamental break between Mies's neo classical work prior to 1919 and the more avant garde work of the 1920s recent research demonstrates that the transformation was much more gradual. Here 11 scholars and architectural historians explore particular aspects of Mies's work together shedding new light on the continual interplay of tradition and innovation, nature and abstraction in the evolution of his design theories and methods. With a wealth of photographs and drawings many not previously published this book conveys for the first time the dynamic intellectual ferment of this formative period in the life of one of architecture's towering figures.

Jean-Louis Cohen, 1996 Examines the life and work of the architect Mies van der Rohe **West meets East** Werner Blaser, Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, Johannes Malms, 1996 Ludwig Mies van der Rohe reigns as one of the most richly complex figures in architecture's pantheon of classical modernists. Buildings such as his Barcelona Pavilion and New York City's Seagram Building have become 20th century landmarks and prototypes for building in the West. And yet a special feature of Mies van der Rohe's work has escaped attention to date: its remarkable concordance with traditional architecture of China and Japan. Werner Blaser and Johannes Malms study sets free these hidden connections between West and East. Malms penetrating text uncovers striking parallels between Far Eastern philosophy and Mies's style of thinking and working. Werner Blaser's photographs make structural similarities underlying Mies's classical modern architecture and Eastern building traditions come into focus.
