Comics Versus Art Bart Beaty, 2012-07-17 On the surface the relationship between comics and the high arts once seemed simple comic books and strips could be mined for inspiration but were not themselves considered legitimate art objects Though this traditional distinction has begun to erode the worlds of comics and art continue to occupy vastly different social spaces Comics Versus Art examines the relationship between comics and the most important institutions of the art world including museums auction houses and the art press Bart Beaty s analysis centres around two questions why were comics excluded from the history of art for most of the twentieth century and what does it mean that comics production is now more closely aligned with the art world Approaching this relationship for the first time through the lens of the sociology of culture Beaty advances a completely novel approach to the comics form

Comic Books and Comic Strips in the United States through 2005 John Lent, 2006-04-30 This final work in

John Lent's series of bibliographies on comic art gathers together an astounding array of citations on American comic books and comic strips. Included in this volume are citations regarding anthologies and reprints, criticism and reviews, exhibitions, festivals and awards, scholarship and theory, and the business, artistic, cultural, legal, technical, and technological aspects of American comics. Author John Lent has used all manner of methods to gather the citations: searching library and online databases, contacting scholars and other professionals, attending conferences and festivals, and scanning hundreds of periodicals. He has gone to great length to categorize the citations in an easy-to-use scholarly fashion, and in the process has helped to establish the field of comic art as an important part of social science and humanities research. The ten volumes in this series, covering all regions of the world, constitute the largest printed bibliography of comic art in the world and serve as the beacon guiding the burgeoning fields of animation, comics, and cartooning. They are the definitive works on comic art research and are exhaustive in their inclusiveness, covering all types of publications: academic, trade, popular, fan, etc., from all over the world. Also included in these books are citations to systematically researched academic exercises, as well as more ephemeral sources such as fanzines, press articles, and fugitive materials, conference papers, unpublished documents, etc., attesting to Lent's belief that all pieces of information are vital in a new field of study such as comic art.
