Roberts,2013-10-28 Disasters and the American State offers a thesis about the trajectory of federal government involvement in preparing for disaster shaped by contingent events Politicians and bureaucrats claim credit for the government's successes in preparing for and responding to disaster and they are also blamed for failures outside of government's control New interventions have created precedents and established organizations and administrative cultures that accumulated over time and produced a general trend in which citizens politicians and bureaucrats expect the government to provide more security from more kinds of disasters The trend reached its peak when the Federal Emergency Management Agency adopted the idea of preparing for all hazards as its mantra Despite the rhetoric however the federal government's increasingly bold claims and heightened public expectations are disproportionate to the ability of the federal government to prevent or reduce the damage caused by disaster Toward a Peaceable Future Yōichirō Murakami,Noriko Kawamura,Shin Chiba,2005 In a pioneering cross cultural transnational and multifaceted endeavor Japanese and American scholars from various disciplines jointly explore challenging questions by redefining the three key concepts of peace security and kyosei The book offers new perspectives for interdisciplinary peace studies and stimulates a public dialogue on how to shape a safer and more peaceful future for individuals communities and nations Natural Disaster Analysis After Hurricane Katrina Harry Ward Richardson,Peter Gordon,James Elliott

Waugh,2006-10-09 The articles in this volume address some of the more serious issues raised by Katrina including the responsibility of public officials to ensure that the system works the president's role in disasters and his role in the Katrina disaster disaster myths and the erroneous assumptions that underlie our current programs emergent and prosocial behavior in disasters individual and community vulnerabilities the sheltering and housing of very large numbers of evacuees physical and mental health impacts of disaster the need to manage hazardous areas better the need to promote disaster resiliency to facilitate recovery the need to mitigate hazards and ensure against losses the need to develop national partnerships for disaster recovery the need to organize emergency response and emergency management effectively to ensure agility and discipline and the need to work effectively within the nation's federal system with its shared responsibility
