

Things Fall Apart by Chinua Achebe

Summary

"Things Fall Apart" is a novel by Nigerian author Chinua Achebe, first published in 1958. It is widely regarded as a classic of African literature and a groundbreaking work of postcolonial fiction.

The novel tells the story of Okonkwo, a wealthy and respected member of the Umuofia clan in colonial-era Nigeria. Okonkwo is a self-made man who has risen to his position through hard work, determination, and courage. He is a fierce warrior and a successful farmer, with multiple wives and many children.

Despite his success, Okonkwo is haunted by the memory of his lazy and irresponsible father, whom he despises. He is determined not to be like his father and to be the opposite of everything he stood for. This drive to succeed and prove himself leads Okonkwo to be harsh and inflexible with his family, particularly with his eldest son, Nwoye.

The arrival of European missionaries and colonial officials disrupts the traditional way of life in Umuofia. Many of the clan members, particularly the younger generation, are fascinated by the new religion and the opportunities that the white men offer. Okonkwo, however, sees them as a threat to his way of life and resists their influence.
