Abstract

It appears that the growing religious diversity in the developing and developed worlds will pose a serious challenge in the near future. However, religious minorities are surprisingly understudied in the literature on the politics of accommodation. Similarly, far less emphasis has been placed on non-territorial autonomy, which has the potential to deal with territorially dispersed religious minorities. It is argued that the Ottoman millet system based on Islamic values was the first non-territorial arrangement that successfully accommodated religious differences for centuries. Therefore, this paper reviews the Islamic doctrine and traditions pertaining to religious accommodation in general and the Ottoman millet system, in particular, to examine if the case offers any valuable insights into the scheme of religious autonomy in modern times.

Key words: Non-territorial autonomy, minority religions, Islamic tradition, millet system, accommodation.

Introduction

In the wake of ethnicity-based autonomy movements around the world, much scholarly attention is devoted to the territorial dimension of autonomy in the accommodation of diversity. This is largely because the groups seeking autonomy are geographically

Minority Accommodation through Territorial and Non-Territorial Autonomy Tove H. Malloy, Francesco Palermo, 2015-10-08 Minority Accommodation through Territorial and Non Territorial Autonomy explores the relationship between minority territory and autonomy and how it informs our understanding of non territorial autonomy NTA as a strategy for accommodating ethno cultural diversity in modern societies While territorial autonomy TA is defined by a claim to a certain territory NTA does not assume that it is derived from any particular right to territory allocated to groups that are dispersed among the majority while belonging to a certain self identified notion of group identity In seeking to understand the value of NTA as a public policy tool for social cohesion this volume critically dissects the autonomy arrangements of both NTA and TA and through a conceptual analysis and case study examination of the two models rethinks the viability of autonomy arrangements as institutions of diversity management This is the second volume in a five part series exploring the protection and representation of minorities through non territorial means examining this paradox within law and international relations with specific attention to non territorial autonomy NTA Incorporating Indigenous Rights in the International Regime on Biodiversity Protection Federica Cittadino, 2019-08-12 In Incorporating Indigenous Rights in the International Regime on Biodiversity Protection Federica Cittadino convincingly interprets the Convention on Biological Diversity CBD and its related instruments in light of indigenous rights and the principle of self determination Cittadino s harmonisation of these formally separated regimes serves at least two main purposes First it ensures respect for the human rights framework that protects indigenous rights whilst implementing the biodiversity regime Second harmonisation allows for the full operationalisation of the indigenous related provisions of the CBD framework that concern traditional knowledge genetic resources and protected areas Federica Cittadino successfully demonstrates that the CBD may allow for the protection of indigenous rights in ways that are more advanced than under current human rights law Internal Self-Determination in International Law Kalana Senaratne, 2021-08-05 A clear and accessible study of the principle of internal self determination in international law Federalism as a Tool of Conflict Resolution Soeren Keil, Elisabeth Alber, 2021-05-13 Looking at the growing use of federalism and decentralization as tools of conflict resolution this book provides evidence from several case studies on the opportunities and challenges that territorial solutions offer when addressing internal conflicts within a variety of countries Federalism has been used as a tool of conflict resolution in a number of conflict situations around the world The results of this have been mixed at best with some countries moving slowly to the paths of peace and recovery while others have returned to violence This volume looks at a number of case studies in which federalism and decentralization have been promoted in order to bring opposing groups together and protect the territorial integrity of different countries Yet it is demonstrated that this has been incredibly difficult and often overshadowed by wider concerns on secession de and re centralization and geopolitics and geoeconomics While federalism and decentralization might hold the key to keeping war torn countries together and bringing hostile groups to the negotiation table we nevertheless need to rethink under which conditions territorial autonomy can help to transform conflict and when it might contribute to an increase in conflict and violence Federalism alone so the key message from all contributions cannot be enough to bring peace yet without territorial solutions to ongoing violence it is also unlikely that peace will be achieved The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Ethnopolitics Minority Recognition and the Diversity Deficit Jessika Eichler, Kyriaki Topidi, 2022-11-17 This book addresses one of the most serious societal questions of our time how to create new spaces and frameworks for minority recognition given the State centric sovereignty discourse and the persisting equality jargon that dominate today's world By so doing it approaches minority rights by means of a critical engagement with its underlying premises Notably it makes attempts to both construct and reconfigure neglected legal categories in particular collective rights and to deconstruct domestic constitutional orders More precisely it does so through diametrically opposed levels of analysis that is top down and bottom up logics by exploring sociolegal strategies forms and formats of governance on the one hand and grassroots demands on the other Drawing on empirical findings in Europe and Latin America the book gives us a sense of how recognition needs to be contextualised against the background of right wing trends in Europe and the re building of the State in the Andes This is a fascinating study of one of the key questions engaging human rights minority studies and discrimination law The Political Representation of Kurds in Turkey

Cengiz Gunes, 2020-11-26 Throughout the 1960s and 1970s Turkey relentlessly persecuted any form of Kurdish dissent This led to the radicalisation of an increasing number of Kurds the rise of the Kurdish national movement and the PKK's insurgency against Turkey Political activism by the Kurds or around Kurdish related political demands continues to be viewed with deep suspicions by Turkey's political establishment and severely restricted Despite this the pro Kurdish democratic movement has emerged providing Kurds with a channel to represent themselves and articulate their demands This book is a timely contribution to the debate on the Kurds political representation in Turkey tracing the different forms it has taken since 1950 The book highlights how the transformations in Kurdish society have affected the types of actors involved in politics and the avenues organisations and networks Kurds use to challenge the state Based on survey data obtained from over 350 individuals this is the first book to provide an in depth analysis of Kurdish attitudes from across different segments of Kurdish society including the elite the business and professional classes women and youth activists It is an intimate portrait of how Kurds today are dealing with the challenges and difficulties of political representation Finnish Yearbook of
