Introduction to Sustainability: Humanity and the Environment The Open The Open Courses Library, 2020-01-07 Introduction to Sustainability Humanity and the Environment The Brundtland Report did not technically invent the term sustainability it was the first credible and widely disseminated study that probed its meaning in the context of the global impacts of humans on the environment Its main and often quoted definition refers to sustainable development as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs The report uses the terms sustainable development sustainable and sustainability interchangeably emphasizing the connections among social equity economic productivity and environmental quality The pathways for integration of these may differ nation by nation still these pathways must share certain common traits the essential needs of the world's poor to which overriding priority should be given and the idea of limitations imposed by the state of technology and social organization on the environment's ability to meet present and future needs Chapter Outline What is Sustainability The IPAT Equation Human Consumption Patterns and the Rebound Effect Challenges for Sustainability The Open Courses Library introduces you to the best Open Source Courses Introduction to Sustainability Nolberto Munier, 2005-06-17 Sustainability relates with Economics Society and Environment However one common fact that links them all is the generation of waste This chapter is divided into two The first part analyses the current generation of waste as well as its treatment The second intends to establish policies for the future treatment of waste or better yet for ceasing the generation of waste This first part begins by raising some capital questions What is waste Which are the components of waste Where is waste generated and How is waste treated The second part will deal with Why is waste produced and What is society doing to correct this problem 2 2 First part

Current generation and treatment of waste 2 2 1 What is waste The dictionary defines waste as something useless unwanted or defective and the word by product as something produced in an industrial or biological process in addition to the principal product From the point of view of sustainability the word waste does not have that meaning as though it may be unwanted it is not something useless and is certainly not defective Even if in a manufacturing process a product or part of it does not conform to the manufacturer s quality specs it does not thereby become waste but is rather scrap material that is usually brought back to its original state and then processed again The Principles of Green and Sustainability Science Adenike A. Akinsemolu,2020-03-28 This book uses the concept of sustainability in science to address problems afflicting the environment and to devise measures for improving economies societies behaviors and people The book pursues a scientific approach and uses scientific evidence as the basis for achieving sustainability The key topics addressed include unemployment health and disease unsustainable production our common future renewable energies waste management environmental ethics and harmful anthropogenic activities Whereas past literature has mainly examined sustainability as an environmental issue this book expands the conversation into various sciences including mathematics biology agriculture computer science engineering and physics and shows how sustainability could be achieved by uniting these fields It offers a wealth of information across various disciplines making it not only an intriguing read but also informative and insightful

Sustainability Science Bert de Vries,2014-05-14 Textbook surveys key issues of sustainability energy nature agro food resources economics for advanced undergraduate and graduate level courses Sustainability Science and Engineering ,2006 The Avenues to Sustainability ,2024 Human activities are pushing the ecological boundaries of Earth Rapid changes in climate and the environment create a complex intertwined tangle of wicked problems Sustainability science whose focus is the interactions between humankind and nature is the academic world s response to the call to solve these problems The Avenues to Sustainability Key Lessons from Sustainability Science is a comprehensive introduction to the concepts and theories of sustainability science as well as to the ways in which the sustainability transformation of society could be accomplished It also discusses how daily life learning cultural heritage and art can foster a sustainable way of life A timely guide to sustainability science and theory both to policymakers and ordinary citizens The Avenues to Sustainability can also be used as a university textbook In addition to research based knowledge the book includes contributions from actors in the public sector businesses NGOs and others in Finland Elib
