QUESTION I have a 1994 Dodge Stratus with 100,000 miles. The car has been running fine, but lately I have noticed a vibration in the front of the car when I am driving at 40 to 50 mph. The vibration is most noticeable when I am driving on a bumpy road. I have checked the tires and they are all good. I have also checked the suspension and it seems to be in good shape. What could be causing this vibration?

ANSWER The vibration you are experiencing is most likely due to a problem with the front suspension. The most common cause of this type of vibration is a worn or damaged ball joint. The ball joint is a part of the suspension that allows the wheel to move up and down. If the ball joint is worn, it will cause the wheel to shake, which will be felt as a vibration in the front of the car. Other possible causes of the vibration could be a worn or damaged tie rod, a worn or damaged shock absorber, or a worn or damaged spring. To determine the exact cause of the vibration, you should have a mechanic inspect the front suspension. If the ball joint is the problem, it will need to be replaced. If the tie rod, shock absorber, or spring is the problem, it will need to be replaced. Once the problem is fixed, the vibration should be gone.

1 The first step in creating a business plan is to determine the purpose of the business. This is often the most difficult step, as it requires a clear understanding of the market and the competition.

2 Once the purpose is determined, the next step is to conduct a market analysis. This involves researching the market and the competition to determine the size of the market and the level of competition.

3 The third step is to develop a marketing plan. This involves determining the target market and the marketing mix (product, price, place, and promotion).

4 The fourth step is to develop a financial plan. This involves determining the costs of the business and the expected revenue.

5 The fifth step is to develop an operational plan. This involves determining the day-to-day activities of the business.

6 The sixth step is to develop a management plan. This involves determining the roles and responsibilities of the management team.

7 The seventh step is to develop a risk management plan. This involves identifying the risks to the business and developing strategies to mitigate them.

8 The eighth step is to develop a contingency plan. This involves developing strategies to deal with unexpected events.

9 The ninth step is to develop a monitoring and evaluation plan. This involves developing strategies to monitor the progress of the business and evaluate its performance.

10 The tenth step is to develop a communication plan. This involves developing strategies to communicate with the stakeholders of the business.

- (a) No: The percentage of 'No' responses is highest for the 18-24 age group (approx. 85%) and decreases as age increases, with the 65+ group showing the lowest percentage (approx. 10%).
- (b) Yes: The percentage of 'Yes' responses is highest for the 25-34 age group (approx. 85%) and decreases as age increases, with the 65+ group showing the lowest percentage (approx. 10%).
- (c) Don't know: The percentage of 'Don't know' responses is highest for the 18-24 age group (approx. 85%) and decreases as age increases, with the 65+ group showing the lowest percentage (approx. 10%).
