Willen, 2007-12-05 Transnational Migration to Israel in Global Comparative Context explores both how and why the recent influx of approximately 200 000 non-Jewish migrants from dozens of countries across the globe has led state officials to declare in definitive terms that Israel is not an immigration country despite its unwavering commitment to welcoming unlimited numbers of homeward-bound Jewish immigrants. As this innovative volume illustrates, the arrival of these economically motivated migrants about half of whom are defined by the state as legal and half as illegal has dramatically transformed the local labor economy of Israel/Palestine. Moreover, the presence of labor migrants along with smaller groups of asylum seekers and victims of trafficking in women has also generated a wide array of complicated legal policy related cultural and ideological questions and dilemmas for the Israeli state local municipalities and civil society. Taking both the Palestinian-Israeli conflict and Israel's newfound embeddedness in globalizing labor markets as backdrop this multidisciplinary collection investigates the causes as well as the consequences of these new waves of transnational migration to Israel both in comparison to other world regions and in terms of three interrelated levels of analysis first the micro level of migrants' everyday experience second the meso level of state and institutional policies and practices and finally the macro level of global political economic trends and processes. Bringing together a dynamic array of pioneering senior researchers along with more junior scholars the volume is distinctive not only in its incisive comparisons between Israel and other destination countries but also in its multifaceted analysis of how the Israeli migration regime has shaped, constrained and on occasion been challenged by the arrival of these largely unanticipated migrants. Among the themes analyzed are the relationship between transnational migration processes and the simmering Israeli **American Public Policy in a Comparative Context** Howard M. Population, Ethnicity, And Nation-building Calvin Goldscheider, 2019-07-11 This volume focuses on the linkages between ethnicity and population processes in the context of nation building. Using historical and contemporary illustrations in a variety of countries parts of this complex puzzle are scrutinized through the prisms of sociology, history, political science, anthropology and demography. Themes of ethnic group formation and transformation, persistence and assimilation, demographic transitions and convergences and the processes of political mobilization and economic development are described and compared. Case studies from Southeast Asia, China, Africa, Brazil, Israel, the former Soviet Union, Canada, Europe and the United States are presented by leading scholars. The examples illustrate the diversity of contexts that connect population, ethnicity and nation building, raising new questions and comparative problems. The importance of ethnic conflict for issues of inequality and group disadvantage in the emerging societies of Asia, Africa and the Middle East in the politics of race and immigration in western societies and in European and American history emerges from the research The multidisciplinary emphasis addresses core themes of ethnicity and nation building in comparative perspectives and Identity in Kazakhstan Rico Isaacs, 2018-02-07 Cinema and nationalism are two fundamentally modern phenomena but how have films shaped our understanding of the creation the imagining of Central Asian nations Here Rico Isaacs uses cinema as an analytical lens to explore how the Kazakh national identity has been constructed and contested Drawing on an analysis of Kazakh films from the last century and featuring new interviews with directors and critics involved in the Central Asian film industry his book traces the construction of nationalism within Kazakh cinema from the country's inception as a Soviet Republic to a modern independent nation Isaacs identifies four narratives since the collapse of the Soviet Union a warrior like ethnic narrative rooted in the 18th Century struggles against the Mongolian Oirat tribes a civic inspired narrative cemented in the Stalinist deportations of the 1930s and 40s a religious narrative founded within the mystic and philosophical religion of Tengrism and the cult of the Sky God and a socio economic narrative which roots Kazakh nationhood and identity in contemporary social divisions the lived day to day experiences of ordinary citizens and the struggles they face with authority These last two tropes demonstrate how cinema has emerged as a site of dissent against the country s authoritarian regime under President Nazarbayev Film and Identity in Kazakhstan advances our understanding of Kazakhstan and nationalism by demonstrating the multiple and inessential character of each and illustrates the important role of cinema in contesting political power in the post Soviet space
